AMERICANS ON TORPEDOED SHIP

CARRANZA WILL HELP CATCH VILLA

BOSTONIAN AMONG SAVED

Bedford Man Also One of the Passengers on Norwegian Bark Silius, Sunk Without Warning

Washington, March 11.—The Norwegian bark Silius, which was sunk on the night of March 9 off Havre, France, was torpedoed without warning, according to a cable received at the State Department today from American Consul Osborne at Havre, France.

There were seven Americans aboard the Silius. All were saved.

Among the Americans were Henry Monahan of Boston, David Sherman of Bedford, Mass., John Warbman of Philadelphia and Daniel Norah of Connecticut.

Osborne also confirmed the sinking of the steamer Louisiana by a submarine.

Officials regard the sinking of the Silius as extremely serious because of its possibilities. They admit that the sinking of such a vessel without warning when there were Americans on board is in direct defiance of the stand taken by this government.

It was officially stated that a full and complete investigation of the circumstances of the attack would be made at once. If possible, affidavits would be obtained from the Americans who were rescued from the vessel. If positive evidence is obtained that the vessel was not armed and that it was torpedoed by a submarine without warning, it was plainly indicated that this government at least would call upon Germany for an immediate explanation.

Officials did not disguise their belief that the sinking of the Silius may bring about a "show down" with Germany on the submarine question.

GET ROBBERS IN REVOLVER BATTLE

Hasting-on-Hudson, N. Y., March 11.—A running fight with revolvers between policemen and two bandits, after a daring jewelry store robbery, threw the whole town in excitement today. After a chase they were captured. They said they were Ralph Arnica and Charles Brown, Jr., of Yonkers.

Lisbon, March 11 (delayed).—Baron Rosen, German minister to Portugul, received his passports today.

Berlin, March 11.—Unofficial reports state that General Gallieni, the French minister of war, is to retire owing to the German successes at Verdun, which has had three commanders since the assaults on the fortress began.

London, March 11.—Roumania has seized 50,000 wagons of cereals which had been sold to Germany, according to the Rome Wireless today. The grain is to be used by the Roumanian army. This grain was part of 100,000 wagons of cereals which had been sold to Germany.

Lisbon, March 11.—The Portuguese Cabinet resigned today. A war Cabinet is being formed to deal with the issues raised by Germany's declaration of war.

BOSTON ARCHITECT GUILTY OF SLAYING

Florence, S. C., March 11.—George B. Perkins, a Boston architect, was found guilty today of voluntary manslaughter for killing F. W. R. Hinman, aboard the steamer Mohawk on the high seas, about a year ago. The jury recommended mercy. It was Perkins' second trial, the verdict being the same in both. Perkins fired promiscuously into a group of passengers, while he was under the influence of drugs. Sentence will be passed later.

Urge Employes to Fight.

New Orleans, March 11.—The Southern Lumber Company of Bogalusa announced today it would give a month's pay to all its employes who volunteered for service in Mexico and would hold their jobs open until they return.

W. S. SHUSTER IS DEAD AT DOUGLAS

Douglas, March 11.—Winfield S. Shuster, prominent as a political leader in Worcester County, died early today of pneumonia. Mr. Schuster has held many political offices, having served two terms in the Governor's Council, a term in the Senate and several terms in the House of Representatives. He was a delegate on the unpledged Republican ticket to the national convention. He was about sixty-five years old.

Condemn Easter Hats.

London, March 11.—The official press bureau has issued the following statement:

"The National War Savings Committee condemns extravagance in women's dress, the purchase of new clothes unless imperative and luxurious hats, boots, stockings, gloves and veils."

DENY NEW TRIAL FOR SPELLMAN AND BROWN

Providence, March 11.—Motions for a new trial for Cecil Victor Brown and Henry Spellman, convicted of the murder of Dr. C. Franklin Mohr, were denied by Judge Charles F. Stearns in the Superior Criminal Court today, without the State having to argue.

A heavily-veiled woman who came to the courthouse in a limousine and took a rear seat, was said to resemble, in height, figure and such general appearance as was not concealed by her veilings, the mysterious woman in black who attended some of the trial sessions and was also present at Dr. Mohr's funeral.

Attorney William H. Lewis of Boston, arguing on the motion for Brown, said the community was shocked at the conviction verdicts, that he found no fault with the acquittal of Mrs. Elizabeth C. Mohr, and that, if a new trial was granted, he had new evidence regarding a chauffeur and maid seen in the vicinity of the murder. He accused the State of having concealed evidence.

When Lewis said that it was a matter of record that his client took the police story in a joking way, Judge Stearns interrupted with: "You brought it out yourself. I take it that the jury considered, from the defendant's flippant manner, that a high crime had been committed. When persons treat such a charge flippantly and in a joking manner, that is invariably taken into consideration, along with the weight of the evidence."

Attorney John B. Edwards of Providence, for Spellman, said there had been no evidence to show Spellman had any part in a conspiracy to murder Dr. Mohr, nor any evidence other than to show he shot at Miss Emily G. Burger, who is living.

After Judge Stearns denied the motion Attorney Lewis asked that his exceptions be noted.

Text of Carranza's Reply to Request of U.S.

Washington, March 11.—Carranza's reply to the United States' request that American troops be given permission to invade Mexican territory in the pursuit of Villa, is embodied in the note received today from Consul Silliman, now at Carranza headquarters at Guadalajara. It is as follows:

In due reply to your polite note dated yesterday and forwarded today by Mr. John W. Bell, I have the honor to inform you that upon my making the said note known to the Citizen, first chief of the Constitutionalist army in charge of executive power of the nation, he directed me to say to you that you may be pleased so to report to the Department of State of the Government of the United States that he is grieved to hear (omission) the town of Columbus, N. M., on the occasion of the attack it suffered yesterday from the bandits led by Francisco Villa, that, although there has been in the State of Chihuahua a sufficient force to restore order and afford guarantees to nationals and foreigners since Francisco Villa began operations in the mountains of that State, on the request of the Governor of the State and of the Constitutionalist Consul at El Paso, Texas, the first chief issued in time orders for 2,000 men under command of General Luis Gutierrez to sally forth under instructions to pursue the bandits who have just crossed into the territory o fthe United States, which they were no doubt compelled to do when persistently pursued by the said forces.

The deplorable incident that has just occurred bears some resemblance to the raids effected by Indians in the reservations of the Government of the United States into the States of Sonora and Chihuahua. The Sonora raid took place about the year 1880, when the Indian Geronimo, who died a few years ago at Fort Mount, Alabama, leading a large

GRANTS WILSON PLEA; ASKS RIGHT TO INVADE U. S.

Washington, March 11.—The State Department this afternoon issued a warning to Americans to keep away from the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, the extreme southern part of Mexico. The isthmus is a narrow strip of land lying between the Gulf of Mexico and the Pacific.

By International News Service.

Wshington, March 11.—While a United States army expedition was under way to Mexico to capture or kill the murderer, Villa, and disperse his marauding bands, Venustiano Carranza, head of the Mexican government, today agreed to permit United States troops to enter Mexico for this purpose. He requested similar permission for Mexican troops to pursue Villa into this country.

The Administration regarded this as assuring the early and successful end of the pursuit of Villa; and the Carranza note also removed the fear that Mexico would unite in opposition to our forces, at least for the present.

The American Villa expedition, it is now considered, will return to United States territory when it shall have accomplished its object in capturing or killing the bandit chief.

The Carranza consent came through Consul Silliman, who is with Carranza at Guadalajara. It included a request from Carranza for permission to send Mexican troops into American territory in pursuit of the Villa bandits, should they again cross the border. Carranza took the position that his own men drove Villa into the United States.

Arrest Bandit's Aids on Border

El Paso, Tex., March 11.—Major-General Frederick Funston is expected to reach the border within twenty-four hours, and his arrival here will be the signal for the advance of the troops into Mexico to take Francisco Villa, dead or alive. Funston is known to be opposed to any delay that is absolutely unnecessary.

In the meantime conditions of actual warfare prevail here. The military authorities are taking into custody the ex-officers of Villa who might try to convey to the bandit information as to the plans of the troops. The round-up of former Villa officers and staunch supporters began shortly before midnight, when General Pablo Luna, formerly a member of Villa's bodyguard, was apprehended at the residence of General Banda.

Banda was also arrested when he protested against the removal of Luna. Y Gomez Isidro Luna and Canuto Loba, described as ex-officers in Villa's army, were also seized.

The military authorities moved quickly when notified that Villa spies were active here.

Federal agents learned that 100,000 rounds of ammunition had been loaded into wagons at South El Paso and taken along the border to the west where Villa outposts have been observed.

Soldiers in automobiles were sent in pursuit of the wagon train with orders that under no circumstances must the ammunition reach the Villistas.

General Gavoria, commander of the Carranza garrison at Juarez, received word at midnight that Villa was at La Ascension, Chihuahua, with a large force of men.

With Villa and his bandit raiders at La Ascension, several miles from the Northwestern Railroad line, grave fears were entertained for the safety of a large number of Americans reported to be on board a train en route to Juarez from Casas Grandes.

Thirteenth U. S. Cavalry, Which Will Lead in the Pursuit of Villa, in Practice Manoeuvres on the Border

VILLA OFFICERS AND SUPPORTERS SEIZED BY U. S. AUTHORITIES

The telegraphic communication is reported cut, and it was impossible to send a warning message.

BANDIT HAS 2,000 MEN.

Military authorities at Juarez were notified of Villa's movements southward towards the Northwestern Railroad line by General Bertrani, who is in command of 200 Carranistas soldiers near Palomas, State of Chihuahua.

He reported that the majority of the Villa outlaws moved in the direction of La Ascension, following their defeat by the Thirteenth United States Cavalry at Columbus.

General Bertrani said that Villa was with the column, which numbers approximately 2,000 men. He has not taken his entire command, but has left a number of small groups along the border between Juarez and La Palomas. Several of these bandits have continued their raids on American ranch houses on the American side of the frontier, driving off live stock and burning the buildings.

THREATENED MURDER.

When Villa recently passed through the Mormon colonies at Colonia Juarez, Casas Grandes, and other places in the Galena district, he threatened to murder them if they did not leave Mexico.

Since his defeat at the hands of the Thirteenth Cavalry, Villa has announced his intention of conducting a war on all Americans, saying he will neither give nor ask quarter.

According to the most reliable information received through General Carranza and other sources, the train due to pass Guzman this afternoon is protected by a small military escort. A second Santa Ysabel tragedy is feared, as the guard is a weak one.

Two thousand Carranza soldiers are enroute to Juarez from Chihuahua City, but whether will reach the border too late to entrain over the Northwestern to reach Guzman in time to save the lives of Americans on the train. Ten troop trains are reported coming northward over the Mexican Central lines carrying troops. The engineer operating to Juarez was stopped by the direct railway company on suggestion of General Gavira.

El Paso streets were patrolled by a double force of guards and police.

TROOPS ARE READY.

The troops at Fort Bliss are being kept to meet any emergency.

It is more than likely that Villa by this time has received news of President Wilson's determination to send troops into Mexico. Villa has agents in El Paso who have been keeping him posted, and it is believed if he attacks the Casas Grandes train and massacres Americans he will then retire southward to the Galena district, his old haunt.

Villa was reared in the mountains of this district and knows every foot of the ground. Even the Mexican scouts were unable to find him during the early days of his bandit career, when he was being sought by the troops of President Porfirio Diaz. It will be a difficult matter for the United States troops to run him down in a short period of time should he succeed in getting deep into the mountains.

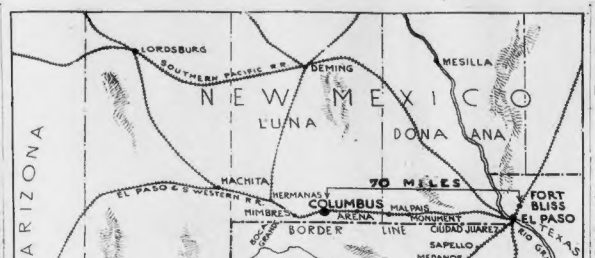
Before evacuating Chihuahua Villa sent a large number of guns and much ammunition into the mountains of the Galena district to be used in an emergency. In doing so he was believed at the time to be preparing for an eventuality should he be defeated by General Obregon's Carranista army.

AMERICAN GUIDES.

In all probability, when United States soldiers invade Mexico, they will be guided by a number of Americans who are familiar with Chihuahua. They are mining men and ranchers who have volunteered their services as scouts.

Reports were circulated here that the War Department plans entrance into Mexico at Juarez, Columbus and Agua Prieta. Three regiments—cavalry, infantry and field artillery—will entrain here, it is said, cross the Rio Grande and proceed over the Mexican & Northeastern railway to Casas Grandes. There they will join Carranza troops and work north toward the border.

At the same time a column entering Mexico at Agua Prieta will proceed eastward, and a column from Columbus will move from the north and east.



Map showing the country along the Mexican border in which Villa and his band of murdering, looting bandits are operating, slaughtering United States soldiers at will and defying the fighting forces of two countries to get him.

Tension felt here since Thursday's raid, owing to reiterated reports that Villa was again marching on Columbus determined to destroy American soldiers here and complete the destruction of the town, was relieved when three companies of the Twentieth U. S. Infantry detrained at midnight.

There are now three troops of cavalry and three infantry companies at Columbus.

Columbus mourned its dead today, all business being suspended for the funeral services over the bodies of the seventeen Americans killed by the Villa raiders.

Six hundred Carranza troops from Casas Grandes and Juarez reached Palomas, eight miles from the border south of here, today.

Americans here are wondering whether the de facto government's soldiers have come to co-operate with the United States troops in the campaign against Villa in his vicinity, to oppose the entry of American soldiers, or whether the Carranistas will cross the border into the United States if that becomes necessary in order to run down Villa and his bandit bands.

Seven wounded men of Villa's followers, who were captured by Colonel H. J. Slocum's troops, will be tried for murder for the killing of seven United States soldiers on Thursday.

The prisoners include a boy of twelve and two officers.

E. D. Stone, special agent of the Department of Justice, who announced that the murder charges would be lodged, conferred with Summers Burkhart, United States Attorney for New Mexico, and afterwards said that similar charges would probably be filed against Mexican prisoners in the State courts in connection with the killing of civilians during the raid.

President's Course Approved by Bryan

South Bend, Ind., March 11.—Bryan gave out the following statement on the Mexican situation shortly after his arrival in South Bend:

"I heartily approve of the President's course as reported in the newspapers, which says that American troops will follow the bandits across the border and seek to punish those who perpetrated the outrage, but he does not intend intervening and that the Mexican authorities are so informed. While the outrage is a distressing one and deserves the severest punishment, I am glad that the President is not permitting himself to be forced into invasion by those who have been trying for two years to get this country into war with Mexico."

Bay State Militia Ready for Service

Adjutant-General Charles H. Cole expresses the conviction that, in the event of a call for State troops in connection with the Mexican situation, 95 per cent. of the 8,000 officers and men in the Massachusetts militia would be in the armories, uniformed and armed, within six hours, ready for service.

Of course, this does not mean that I think troops would be sent on a trip to Mexico on such short notice, but I do feel that the State troops would be ready in this time. The 7,000 in the land forces and the 850 in the naval militia, have shown their ability to mobilize quickly.

As an instance of this, in less than nine hours, 1,500 were mobilized at Salem three years ago, when there was no news in the papers which would lead them to expect such orders.

TODAY'S DEVELOPMENTS IN BORDER SITUATION

General Funston has been granted unlimited authority to handle the campaign against Villa in his own way.

Carranza consents to American troops entering Mexico in pursuit of Villa if the United States will permit Mexican forces to enter this country under similar circumstances.

Carranza commander on border opposite Columbus, N. M., reported to Mexican embassy that he has saved American Mormon colony from Villa.

Carranza forces along border carrying distinctive flag, Funston reports, to prevent their being attacked by American regulars.

Senate and House Foreign Affairs Committees have informally indorsed the President's course up to the present time.

Highest army officers declare present campaign will be exclusively one for the cavalry and artillery, especially the mountain batteries.

The War Department has enforced ironclad censorship, and it is admitted that Funston will have a twenty-four-hour start over any information made public.

President Wilson spent "week end" on yacht Mayflower in touch with affairs in the capital by wireless.

The United States has not notified Pan-American conferees of its plans to capture Villa.

FUNSTON OPPOSES 'FRITTERING,' URGES HOT PURSUIT OF VILLA

Washington, March 11.—General Funston has informed the War Department that Villa had 3000 troops with him and that Carranza troops in his vicinity had fled. General Funston said he advised against frittering away the army marching on towns, while Villa had an opportunity to escape. He suggested that the plans of the army for Villa's capture be surrounded with secrecy for the sake of their success.

FUNSTON'S DISPATCH.

The text of the dispatch from General Funston follows:

It is the opinion of Colonels Dodd and Slocum, in which I concur, that unless Villa is relentlessly pursued, and his forces scattered, he will collect new ones. As troops of the Mexican government are accomplishing nothing and as he can consequently make his preparations and concentrations without being disturbed, he can strike at any point on the border, we being unable to obtain advance information as to him or whereabouts.

If we fritter away the whole command guarding towns, ranches and railroads, it will accomplish nothing if he can find safe refuge across the border after every raid. Although probably more than a thousand took part in the Columbus raid, he is believed to have about 3,000. Even if he should not continue raids, he has entered on a policy of merciless killing of Americans in Mexico.

To show apathy and gross inefficiency of Mexican government troops, an American woman held prisoner by Villa for nine days, but who escaped in the Columbus fight, states that during all that time he was undisturbed by any great distance from the border collecting a force of about 3,000. The few Carranza troops in the region fled, losing all contact with him, and not even informing us as to his whereabouts.

If it is proposed to take the action suggested, I recommend no information be given out in order that we may stand some chance of success in the end.

If desired, I shall personally command. It would be desirable to replace, as far as possible from available cavalry in the United States, the cavalry taken from the border.

COLUMBUS HEARS CARRANZA WILL AID HUNT FOR VILLA

By EDMUND BEHR.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, N. M., March 11.—Fear that General Carranza, head of the de facto Mexico government, would oppose the invasion of Mexico by American troops pursuing General Francisco Villa and the bandits who attacked Columbus Thursday morning, was dissipated this morning by reports that Carranza had pledged his co-operation in the military operations that have as their aim the complete crushing of Villa's band.

Alarms have been frequent along the border during the forty-eight hours that have passed since Villa's attack on Columbus, but up to the present no definite information has been received as to the killing of any more American citizens. A dispatch from Bisbee, Ariz., late last night carried a rumor that an American had been killed on a ranch near Osborne Junction, but that was denied in a message that came from Douglas early today.

This message stated that Mexican soldiers, wearing Carranza uniforms, had attempted to steal some cattle near Osborne Junction, but had not injured any Americans.

horde invaded a community in the north of the State of Sonora, and committed a number of murders and depredations taking the lives and property of Mexican families until, after a long, persistent pursuit by Mexicans and American forces, the band of malefactors was annihilated and its chief captured.

The invasion of Chihuahua, led by the Indian Victoria, followed by 800 Indians, took place from 1884 to 1886. The band of Foravos then went as far as the town of Tejolochic and Tres Castillos, very near the capital of Chihuahua, also committing many crimes, and at the first actual battle they had with the Mexican forces they scattered after losing their chief.

In both those cases an agreement between the Government of the United States and Mexico provided that armed forces of either country could freely cross the territory of the other to pursue and chastise those bands.

Bearing in mind those precedents and the happy results to both countries yielded by the agreement above referred to, the government over which the Citizen First Chief presides, desiring to exterminate in as little time as possible the horde led by Francisco Villa who was recently outlawed, to capture and inflict upon him the penalty of the law, applies through your honorable Mr. Confidential Agent, to the Government of the United States and asks the permission necessary to let Mexican forces cross into American territory in pursuit of these bandits, acknowledging due reciprocity in regard to forces of the United States crossing into Mexican territory which the raid effected at Columbus should unfortunately be reported at any other point of the border. The Government of Mexico would highly appreciate a prompt and favorable decision from the Government of the United States.

Be pleased to accept, Mr. Confidential Agent, my respectful distinguished consideration.

In Charge of the Department of State.

MASS TROOPS ON BORDER

Plans Include Concentration of Entire United States Army for Advance Into Mexico.

Washington, March 11.—The campaign to get Villa was well under way today, according to the high officials of the War Department. They refused to permit publication of any information of what has been done, but it was generally accepted here that the First Cavalry Brigade, Brigadier General Parker commanding; Second Cavalry Brigade, Col. George S. Doo commanding, and other units already are on the move. Because the First Cavalry Brigade, Brigadier-General Parker commanding; Second Cavalry Brigade, Colonel George S. Doo commanding, and other units already are on the move. Because the entire border is honeycombed with spies all details received from operations will be held up. This is the direct order of General Funston, who has explained that he must strike and secretly if Villa is to be eliminated from the situation.

Meanwhile officials admittedly are gravely concerned over what attitude Carranza will take. The first chief holds in his hands the power of peace or war with the United States. Every pledge has been made to him that the present punitive expedition is intended only to punish bandits and murderers, and that so soon as his own troops are in position to safeguard the border the Americans will be withdrawn.

The entire regular army will be concentrated on the border as fast as trains can get them there. Secret orders to move have been sent to all units now scattered through the United States. The coast artillery, however, will be held in readiness and not sent forth until the demand is urgent because of the present international situation.

Commanders, however, will organize provisional regiments, get full supplies and be ready to start at a moment's notice.

Carranza has ordered an expeditionary force of five thousand men to proceed against Villa, but officials here say that it will be made up of scattering units and will not be effective. It, however, may be able to prevent Villa's escape to the south and thus allow the American cavalry to corner him.

As it is, his cavalry must do the work that in Europe is being done by the armies.

ARTILLERY READY.

The cavalry will be supported by field artillery and the mountain batteries, while a reserve of infantry will maintain the lines of communication and protect the border from further surprise raids.

The sharp campaign against Villa is expected to demonstrate the utter weakness of the aeroplane service of the army. As the eyes of the staff, officials declared today, there should be not less than fifty aeroplanes with experienced pilots and observers available for duty, instead of less than a dozen. If Funston had fifty aviators with good pilots, officials declared that he would not only locate Villa within a day, but that he also would be able to plan a campaign that would round up the bandit chief without the loss of many men.

It is generally everywhere that the campaign will be an ugly one. Haste, even at the cost of lives, is imperative. Not only must Villa be cornered, but he must be cornered before his emissaries have the opportunity to rally to his defence the thousands of American-hating Mexicans of the South. The fighting also is likely to be of the guerilla sort.

Villa, familiar with every foot of territory in northern Mexico, is expected to flee to the mountains, where he can entrench. This will necessitate Funston dividing his command into three bodies, to sweep the plains around up in all opposition. It is accepted that the wings of the expedi-

Mrs. Villa Cries "Plot to Kill My Husband"

Los Angeles, Cal., March 11.

"IT'S a plot to kill my husband," cried Mrs. Francesco Villa, eighteen-year-old wife of the Mexican leader, whose faith in her husband is unshaken.

"The papers lie. I do not believe my husband would harm an American. He is being tricked by his enemies. He is a brave man and some day will be President of Mexico."

Mrs. Villa was red-eyed from weeping, and, as she talked, she clasped her baby daughter in her arms.

tionary forces will have crossed the border from Fort Bliss, Texas, and Douglas, Arizona, with the main center entering at Columbus, N. M.

President Wilson went out of town to rest over Sunday, cruising on the yacht Mayflower. He made arrangements, however, before leaving, to have the Senate and House Foreign Affairs Committees notified of his plans, and the reasons why he acted without consulting Congress.

It is understood that the President has let it be known that he believes there can be no real objection to a punitive expedition to capture a murderer, but that if he had presented the matter to Congress and had asked for direct authority to act, the "invasion" would then have assumed an official character and would have aroused the most intense indignation among Carranza's advisers, and likely have precipitated the one thing the President hopes to avoid—complete intervention to pacify all Mexico.

Under existing circumstances, officials say, Carranza is even more strongly entrenched in his position as head of the de facto government by the action of the United States than before. The White House announcement made it plain that the action taken was "in entirely friendly aid of the constituted authorities in Mexico and with scrupulous regard for the sovereignty of that republic." This empasizes the recognition of Carranza, diplomats here say.

MORE SECRET AGENTS.

The Department of Justice is reinforcing its special agents in the border cities, New Orleans and New York. The report that the present Villa activities have been financed for the purpose of discrediting Carranza and forcing intervention are being investigated, and at the same time every effort will be continued to prevent any further smuggling of arms across the border.

To the fact that Villa was short of funds in munitions and money is attributed his raid on Columbus, N. M., and this is counted on as a material factor in helping the American expedition send out to eliminate him as a factor in Mexican affairs.

There was an utter absence of tension in the executive departments. Although a "state of war" existed, the telegraph rooms in the State and War departments were opened at the regular hour and none of the higher officials of either the State or the War Department reached their desks until 9 o'clock. This was all by the order of the President that nothing must take place which would indicate that the expedition into Mexico was anything more than had ordered, one in every way legal to capture and punish the bandits who had shot up an American town and killed American citizens.

Former Secretary of War Garrison was back on the job again today, assisting Secretary Baker and putting him in possession of all of the details of the department. The General Staff was cooperating with General Funston, but it was accepted that the latter would be given rather wide discretionary powers.

The prepared plans of the general staff provide for the entire conquest of Mexico and the present emergency simply calls for a punitive expedition to accomplish a single given task and then return to the United States.

Special State Department Agent Carothers, who was at Columbus, N. M., yesterday, telegraphed the State Department today that he had obtained papers lost by Villa in his raid on New Mexico. Carothers confirmed the fact that the papers showed Villa had urged Zapata to join him in an attack upon the United States. Carothers stated that he had forwarded the papers to General Funston.

General Funston has the unlimited confidence of the administration in his undertaking, and has been given the widest authority to conduct it in his own way. He can either direct it in person or from Fort Sam Houston as he sees fit.

FREE REIN FOR FUNSTON.

"I have directed General Funston to use his own discretion in directing an organized defensive expedition," said Secretary of War Baker today.

"And I should like to have it emphasized that this is a defensive expedition rather than a punitive one.

"General Funston has authority to use the forces in his department at his own discretion. He has been informed that he is at liberty to call on the War Department freely for any reinforcements necessary to keep up border patrol."

REFUGEES AT EL PASO TELL OF TORTURE AT HANDS OF BANDITS

El Paso, Tex., March 11—Twenty-five women, 150 children and ten men were brought here by train from Columbus, N. M., the scene of the Villa raid. The same train brought the bodies of several of the American victims. Very few except able-bodied men are left in Columbus now, and all are heavily armed.

Mrs. W. T. Richie, with her two-months-old baby in her arms and the body of her husband in a coffin in the baggage car, nursed a mangled hand, the result of a bandit's attempt to remove a ring from her finger.

"We were awakened early in the morning by a volley of shots," she said. "The bandits broke into our sleeping room and demanded money. Mr. Ritchie had only $50, and he handed it to them. They demanded more and began to beat him. He was ill in bed and pleaded with them to let him alone.

"In the hope that they would cease beating him I took my purse from the bureau drawer and gave them $7, all I had. The bandits saw the rings on my fingers and began to slip them off.

RETURNED STOLEN RINGS.

"A silver ring, an Indian keepsake, would not come off easily and the bandits, after making my finger bleed in an effort to remove it, struck the back of my hand with a pistol.

"Those black marks you can see are the result. Then they dragged my husband out of bed and downstairs and shot him. My daughter and I escaped from the burning hotel by dragging ourselves and our trunks and carrying the baby down the back stairs. Mrs. Myrtle English made her escape with us.

"Just before I left Columbus, a Mexican came to the place where I was sleeping and gave my rings back. They were wrapped in a piece of newspaper on which was written: 'Every 'I ask rings.' The messenger said he came from one of the dying bandits, who is a prisoner in Columbus, and who had been visited by a priest. The priest told him he must return the stolen rings before he died."

W. W. Carpenter, chief deputy United States Customs Collector at El Paso, returned on an afternoon train from Columbus, having gone there to make an investigation of the invasion and slaughter.

"I spent last night with Stephen S. Birchfield," said Mr. Carpenter. "He told me the details of the attack. The Villistas entered Birchfield's room, demanding money, and he gave them $200. They demanded more. He gave them his check book and told them it was worth more than the money, as they could just write on the check, the amounts they wanted.

SLIPPED FROM BANDITS.

"While the bandits were arguing over the checks he made his escape. Jolly Garner and Ben Aguirre, two United States customs riders, were in an adjoining room, and they slipped down the posts of the porch to the ground when they heard the bandits in Birchfield's room. They also told me that the Mexicans came into the town with the greatest caution and that nobody knew they were there until they began shooting and swearing.

"There seemed to be no leader. Every bandit did as he pleased and all seemed bent upon getting all the loot they could secure. Pancho Villa was not among the band in full uniform waving a sword, as some statements have had it. While Mexicans yelled their vivas for Villa, I failed to see a person who could say he saw Villa personally and no one who saw a man in uniform waving a sword."

MADE STEALTHY ENTRANCE.

"Villa's entry into Columbus," said Lieutenant Clarence C. Benson, here with a wounded hand, "was made as stealthily as a cat, and he entered the town by circling it in order not to disturb the camp of the Thirteenth Cavalry. Our camp was aroused by the firing in Columbus and at first we did not know it was a bandit raid.

"As the firing increased we were aroused to the importance of the affair and began to get the troopers out of their tents for action. Then a fire started in one of the buildings in the town. Soon the light was flaring over everything and we could see the band of Mexicans now aiming and shooting at Americans who appeared at doors or windows, shooting at every light that appeared at even the most remote residences, carrying merchandise stores and otherwise doing all possible damage.

"Colonel Slocum, commanding the Thirteenth Cavalry, rallied as many men as had secured their arms and rushed across the railroad to the business street of the town. He had a close call from being shot down by a bandit, his revolver being shot from his hand. Not long after we got into the fight the Mexicans started to retreat. It was then that they darted south past the army camp and it was then we had the hottest engagement with them.

"We killed eighteen as they rode past us. I did not see Villa. It was so dark that we could not distinguish one from the other, and I do not believe any one in Columbus distinguished Villa. We know it was a Villa band and wounded prisoners have disclosed that he was present in person.

"The cruelty of the bandits was terrible. Men were shot down, then beaten or stamped in the face. Two victims, J. J. Taylor and wife, were brutally mutilated at their home just outside the town after being murdered.

CRIES FOR HER BABY.

"Mrs. Maud H. Wright, who was made a prisoner by Villa in Chihuahua Mexico, brought to the border with him and released during the attack on Columbus, came to El Paso on the afternoon train. She is frantic for her baby, snatched from her arms when Villa placed her under arrest in her Mexican mountain home. At that time he killed her husband and gave her baby into the keeping of a Mexican woman.

"The mother dares not return in search of the child and is unable to get assistance of the Carranza authorities to ascertain if the baby is even alive. She fears the child died, as it was small and required her nursing.

"The Mexican bandits have killed all the cows, and I doubt if there are any means in that country for giving a small baby nourishment," she said.

"I pray some Mexican mother is caring for the poor little thing."

The mother has journeyed to ride for weeks in the saddle with Villa and his men, for no apparent reason except to torture her. Mrs. Wright escaped in the darkness during the attack on Columbus.

PHOTOGRAPH shows a detachment of United States infantrymen behind a hastily constucrted sandbag barricade. On account of the sandy nature of the soil along the Mexican border it has been found that trench digging is difficult on account of the continual sliding of the loose sand. For this reason when a hasty defensive work is essential the troops throw up mounds which are topped with sand bags. This affords good security, and the soldiers use the openings between the bags as loopholes to fire through at the enemy.

PRECEDENT FOR ACTION BY U. S. FORCE

By International News Service.

Washington, March 11.—Precedents for invasions by either the United States or Mexico abound in history.

As far back as 1858 the incident of this kind was held to be within the rights of either country. In a communication written by Secretary of State Marcy to the Mexican minister February 4 of that year he said:

If Indians, whom the United States are bound to restrain, shall make a hostile incursion into Mexico this government will not complain if the Mexican forces who may be sent to repel them shall cross to this side of the line for that purpose provided that in so doing they abstain from injuring the persons and property of citizens of the United States.

Secretary of State Fish in 1874 wrote as follows:

The report of W. M. Shafter, lieutenant-colonel, Twenty-fourth Infantry, commanding the district of Nueces, Texas, concerning recent raids by Mexicans and Indians from Mexicomito, Texas, for marauding purposes, with your indorsement of the 29th ultimo, has been submitted to the President and has together with numerous other reports and documents relating to the same subject been duly considered.

You will instruct General Ord, commanding in Texas, to invite co-operation on the part of the local Mexican authorities and to inform them that while the President is anxious to avoid giving offence to Mexico he is, nevertheless, convinced that the invasion of our territory by armed and organized bodies of thieves and robbers to prey upon our citizens should be no longer endured.

General Ord will at once notify the Mexican authorities along the Texas border of the great decline of the President for unity with them in efforts to suppress this long continued lawlessness. At the same time he will inform those authorities that if the government of Mexico shall continue to neglect the duty of suppressing these outrages that duty will devolve upon this government.

You will, therefore, direct General Ord that in case the lawless incursions continue he will be at liberty, to the use of his own discretion, when in pursuit of a band of the marauders and when his troops are either in sight of them or upon a fresh trail, to follow them across the Rio Grande.

129,398 IN NATIONAL GUARD AVAILABLE FOR USE IN MEXICAN CRISIS

By International News Service.

Washington, March 11.

ONE hundred twenty-nine thousand, three hundred and ninety-eight National guardsmen, representing every State in the Union except Nevada, are available for the use of the federal government should they be needed in the present Mexican crisis. There are 129,693 enlisted men and 8,705 officers, according to the War Department report at the close of 1915 (the latest available figures).

INVASION JUST, SAYS TEXAS GOVERNOR

Austin, Texas, March 11.—Hearty approval of the Administration's course in sending troops across the border is expressed today by State Governor Ferguson in the following signed statement to the International News Service:

By JAMES E. FERGUSON, Governor of Texas.

Replying to your request for expression of my views on the massacre at Columbus, N. M., and the action of our government in sending troops into Mexico, I beg to say I am not wholly surprised at its occurrence.

For months we have known that in the present condition of our border defenses our country might be visited with such affliction at this at most any time or place. For months I have strongly urged the President's policy of preparedness, and this most outrage will amply illustrate his necessity is to for our people to become alive to the real situation and demand that we suffer no longer from an inadequate army.

While a great deal is being said about people who have loaned and not forget that in obedience to our national honor, we must protect those who risk all at home.

I heartily approve the action of the President in sending the troops across the border to catch the guilty bandits.

The question of intervening may be decided, but if it becomes necessary in order to protect lives on American soil then let it come.

However, let us keep cool and deal with that question when it gets before us. Let us prepare to be prepared.

Late Mexico Bulletins

Columbus, N. M., March 11.—An American ranch near Malpais, N. M., 24 miles east of here, was raided last night by Mexican bandits, according to an unconfirmed report today. Troops were sent to investigate. Another Mexican prisoner, who was wounded in the fighting here, died today. Six wounded Mexicans are still being held under military guard.

San Francisco, March 11.—The first United States cavalry stationed at the Presidio of Monterey left today by special train for the Mexican border. General Ball, commander of the Western division of the army, received the order to entrain early today. With the troopers went an ambulance corps and thirty members of the commissary department.

Washington, March 11.—According to information reaching the War Department from General Funston, Villa, with a force of 3000 men, has been located a short distance south of the border.

TERRITORY AIM OF VILLA

By ALBERT B. FALL, United States Senator from New Mexico.

Washington, March 11.—The administration's efforts now are clearly directed toward an attempt to show that this latest outrage is only Villa's way of trying to force the United States to intervene in Mexico.

If the administration does not know this is the exact opposite of the truth, it ought to know it, and will know it if it reads intelligently the reports it has on file in its departments.

Villa invaded New Mexico for a much more ominous reason than to force us to adopt armed intervention. Then why did he do it? Nobody knows but this was not one.

Villa has sworn to have revenge for the part that the United States is transporting Obregon's forces through United States territory on the American railway lines from Eagle Pass, Tex., to Douglas and Nogales, Ariz.

While Obregon's troops were being thus moved Villa's army was pushing over southern Chihuahua and down, suffering horrible privations, of hunger and thirst, and arrived at the camp of Obregon, his foe, with tongues swollen and stomachs empty. That was the supreme motive that led Villa to make the attack on Columbus, but he has more pressing reasons.

To understand them it is necessary to know that in the opinion of the overage Mexican today, actual subjugation of the United States is by no means impossible. The word American has disappeared from the Mexican vocabulary. From our President down we are now all "Gringos" and the "gringo" in Mexico is equal to "greaser" in the United States.

More than 50 per cent. of Mexican believe that Carranza troops are in Texas fighting for a strip of United States territory stretching from the Rio Grande to the Pacific, a more straight west to the Pacific coast, at an average distance of 25 miles north of the Mexican boundary.

It is this territory over which the war of 1847 arose. Mexico has always claimed that a strip was cut out of it in the annexation treaty.

Villa's plan is to make himself the leader resulting in successful invasion of territory of the United States in order to win for him the leader much valuable support among the Mexican people. Villa is sure to oust his enemy Carranza. His attack on Columbus is a means to that end.

It is not the first time that Villa has undertaken an invasion of the United States. Before the war was on so long ago, Villa actually planned to capture Juarez, Mex., and for that purpose had assembled a force of armed troops, with the avowed purpose of taking El Paso.

For months Villa has been drilling out in and around San Buena Ventura, about 15 miles from the border at Ascarate, and has come by road by way of Casas Grandes. The only doubt in my question as to the fact that all this time he has been active and from Carranista officials.

TUNNEL EXTENSION TO OPEN MARCH 18

The East Boston tunnel extension and the new subway station at Bowdoin square will be opened to public travel Saturday, March 18. This extension carries the East Boston tunnel under Bowdoin square to an incline in Cambridge street near Russell street and will provide continuous tunnel tracks between Maverick square, East Boston, and the surface tracks in Cambridge street in the West End.

A through line of cars will be operated between Central square, Cambridge, and Orient Heights.

Provision for turning East Boston cars and Cambridge cars without passengers at the Bowdoin square end of the tunnel has been made. Cars from the East Boston line, on completion of those bound for Central square, Cambridge, will run to the new Bowdoin square station, where they will be run around a loop to the inbound track, turning from Bowdoin square to East Boston, where they will be run upon the return routes.

Cars from Cambridge that do not run to Central square will be turned back to Scollay Under and will then run upon a switch back track beyond that station, where they will be turned and reversed, and will then make the return trip from Scollay Under.

SHARON BUNGALOW DESTROYED BY FIRE

A bungalow in Norwood street, Sharon, owned by Dr. Herbert Mc-Intosh, No. 82 Boylston street, Boston, was destroyed by fire early today. The origin of the fire is being caused by defective wiring, swept through the house, which had been closed for the winter. The loss on the house, the firemen arrived the stream was directed on the fire. The police place the loss at $7,000.

J. P. MORGAN SAILS FOR UNITED STATES

By International News Service.

London, March 11.—J. Pierpont Morgan left here at noon today for Liverpool, to sail for New York on the liner Philadelphia. A number of prominent officials were at the Euston station to bid farewell to the American financier.

Mr. Morgan's passage on the Philadelphia has been booked secretly, and every effort was made to prevent the news of his departure from becoming known. His name did not appear on the passenger list.

INDIFFERENCE OVER WAR WITH PORTUGAL

Berlin, March 11 (Wireless via Sayville, L. I.).—The Berlin newspapers commenting on the state of war now existing between Germany and Portugal state that, in fact, no change has taken place in view of the actions of Portugal since the beginning of the war. The declaration was received with complete indifference by the population.

WILSON REALIZES DANGER OF WAR WITH ALL THE MEXICANS

Washington, March 11.—While the present movement, the first aggressive action in Mexico since the capture of Vera Cruz, is described as a punitive expedition, for the sole purpose of capturing Villa and his band, President Wilson realized that this action might lead to a war with Mexico.

Secretary of War Baker laid before the President a detailed statement of the available military strength. He advised President Wilson that the War College division of the General Staff had prepared a plan of campaign not only for the expedition against Villa, but for any intervention in Mexico.

The administration did not know what action Carranza would take when a division of American soldiers invaded Mexican soil. It feared that Villa might rally Mexicans behind him in a movement of defence against American invasion that might overthrow Carranza and sweep Villa into power as Mexico's leader.

President Wilson took cognizance of this situation when he authorized the following statement by Secretary Tumulty:

ORDERS KEPT SECRET.

Should an emergency arise that would make necessary further action by the President, he will call Congress and lay the entire situation before it.

In that he will ask for authority to raise a volunteer army to supplement the efforts of the regular army in coping with the situation.

Secretary of War Baker was closeted with former Secretary Garrison for two hours before he took the General Staff's plan of campaign to the White House for President Wilson's approval. Secretary Baker also had been in conference with Major-General Scott, army chief of staff, and the entire general staff.

General Funston, chosen to command the expedition, has under him Brigadier-General James Parker, commanding the First Cavalry Brigade; Brigadier-General Robert J. Evans, commanding the Second Brigade of Infantry; Brigadier-General George Bell, Jr., commanding the Fifth Brigade of cavalry and infantry; Brigadier-General Thomas S. Davis, commanding the Sixth Brigade of infantry.

SPAIN IN CHARGE OF HOSTILE INTERESTS

Madrid, March 11.—Spain's Ministers at Berlin and Lisbon, following Germany's declaration of war on Portugal, have been charged with the representation of the respective interests of the two countries.

FLOOD OF OFFERS TO AID VILLA HUNT

Washington, March 11.—Since President Wilson decided to "go get" Francisco Villa the War Department literally has been swamped with offers from volunteers. From Portland, Me., to Portland, O., and from Duluth to New Orleans, Americans are falling all over themselves to aid in the capture of Mexico's bad man. Secretary Baker said today no action would be taken on the offers at this time, but they probably will be filed away for future reference.

FORMER SENATOR DAVIS IS DEAD

Washington, March 11.—Henry Gassaway Davis, former United States Senator from West Virginia, and Democratic candidate for Vice-President in 1904, died here early today of grip. The funeral probably will be held at Elkins, W. Va., his home for many years. Mr. Davis was ninety-three years old.

ASK BIGGER DINING HALL AT HARVARD

Following the petition for cleaner ice in the water containers in Foxcroft Hall, another petition is being signed by many of the students who dine there protesting against its overcrowded condition and urging that the same be remedied before the next college year. The petition also urges that Randall Hall be opened again next October.

CARRANZA TROOPS AID U. S.

By International News Service.

Washington, March 11.—The Mormon colony of Americans in Mexico has been saved from Villa's vengeance by Carranista irregular troops under General Bertani. The latter has notified the Mexican embassy of this fact and also declared that Villa has only about 500 on his personal bodyguard with him.

According to Bertani's telegram to Ambassador Domingo Arredondo he is working in unison and co-operating to every way with Colonel Slocum, commanding the American forces at Columbus. He has established his headquarters at Palomas, directly across the American border from Columbus, N. M.

The information received by the Mexican embassy made it plain that Bertani is acting promptly to co-operate in every way with the United States. He has 1,200 men with him and he declares that yesterday on his arrival near Palomas a scouting division of his troops took up the Villa trail and attempted to surround the bandit leader.

By hard riding Villa escaped and was moving toward the railway line, seemingly to try to cut off the Mormon refugee train, when a portion of the Carranista troops got between him and his destination.

Bertani immediately got into communication with Colonel Slocum and put him in possession of all his information, which was promptly conveyed to General Funston.

Officials at the Mexican embassy were well pleased with the message from Bertani, and declared that it meant that Villa's days are numbered and that the most grave danger—that of complications with the Mexican people generally—has seemingly been avoided.

Congress Solidly Behind President

Washington, March 11.—President Wilson today has Congress squarely behind him in the determination to exterminate Francisco Villa.

Not a dissenting voice was heard about the senate and House when it became known that the President had decided to end the "watchful waiting" and take a hand in the straightening out of the anarchistic tangle into which the Southern Republic generally has drifted.

Before the announcement from the White House, however, mutterings to the effect that the Columbus massacre was the last straw were heard on every side, and belligerents found a common ground.

In the Senate two resolutions were introduced directing the President forthwith to take a hand in Mexican affairs, one by Senator Fall, of New Mexico. The other was by Senator McCumber of North Dakota.

Senator Ashurst of Arizona made a stirring speech in which he declared that the day has come when the American government must substitute grape shot for grape juice in its dealings with Mexico. Senator Stone tried to restrain Senator Ashurst, but Senator Ashurst from making his speech. Mr. Ashurst demanded immediate consideration of his resolution. After discussion, Senator Stone objected, and under the rules of the Senate Ashurst's request could not be granted.

President Wilson called Chairman Stone to the White House this morning, over the telephone almost as soon as the announcement of impending trouble was received in Washington. He told the chairman what he had in mind.

Before the decision, however, the discussion had broken out in the House. Representative Mann's statement, however, was when word of the President's determination to act became known. Democrats received the announcement met with general expressions of quiet satisfaction.

The discussion in the Senate that followed the introduction of the resolutions was short and sharp. Senators who did not speak publicly agreed in private that the time had come when there must be action—and action at once. Senator Ashurst started the debate after Senator Stone had succeeded in blocking consideration of the McCumber resolution.

GERMANS MAKE GAINS IN NEW VERDUN DRIVE

London, March 11.—German troops, renewed their violent assaults on the Verdun front east and west of the Meuse during the night. They were able to gain some ground in the opening assaults, but an immediate counter attack by the French drove them back from much of this territory.

This official information is given in the French War Office communique issued this afternoon, which also states that the Germans have redoubled their efforts on the east bank of the Meuse between Vaux and the ridge nearby. Fort de Vaux was also bombarded.

While keeping up their terrific drive against Verdun, the Germans are also extending their offensive on the west front.

Furious attacks have been launched in the region of Rheims, north of the Aisne River, where the wood of Ville-au-Bois was carried by storm, the German War Office announced today. The capture of 12 French officers and 725 men was officially reported from Berlin.

The text of the French official communique follows:

"After bombarding our positions between Troyon and Berry-au-Bac, north of the Aisne, for several hours yesterday, the Germans debouched from Ville-au-Bois and attacked the salients which form our lines at Bois des Buttes. After a very sharp combat we drove the enemy from the section northwest and from the section west of the forest which he had succeeded in occupying.

GERMANS ATTACK.

"West of the Meuse the Germans launched during the night a strong attack, southeast of Bethincourt, against our trenches, along the road from Bethincourt to Chattancourt.

"An immediate counter-attack again gave us complete control of an important communicating trench which they had succeeded in penetrating.

"East of the Meuse, the enemy redoubled his efforts between the village and the ridge of Fort de Vaux. The bombardment continued all night with great violence, and numerous infantry assaults were made against the village, which has been wrecked by shells.

"The enemy seized some houses east of the church. All his attacks were checked in the western part of the village, where we are still holding out, following numerous attacks upon the ridge of the fort.

GERMAN PROGRESS.

"The Germans have made some progress on the slopes, but their efforts to reach the wire entanglements extending before the fort were checked by our fire.

"In the Woevre region, the bombardment has continued very intense in the region of Fix and Moulainville.

"In Lorraine, our artillery fire has inflicted heavy damage upon German works near Embermenil.

"In the Vosges, our batteries have been very active in the valley of the Thur and east of Thann."

The text of the German official report follows:

"West front — Saxon regiments stormed the strongly fortified positions southwest and south of Ville-au-Bois, twelve miles northwest of Rheims, over a width of 1,400 yards and a depth of one kilometre 1.63 of a mile. Our losses were slight. We captured twelve French officers and 725 men in addition to one revolver cannon, five machine guns and thirteen mine throwers.

REPULSE COUNTER ATTACKS.

"On the western bank of the Meuse the last positions held by the French in Corbeaux forest and Cumieres forest were cleared of the enemy. Enemy counter attacks around the southern border of the woods and positions farther west broke down.

"On the eastern bank of the Meuse there was much artillery activity, especially in the neighborhood northeast of Bras and west of the village of Vaux and For De Vaux.

"On the Woevre Plain there was no decisive infantry engagement with the exception of a surprise attack which the French launched against the village of Blanze. It was repulsed with sanguinary losses to the enemy.

"A French aeroplane fell in flames between the lines southwest of Chateau Salins. The occupants were dead. The corpses and remnants of the machine were buried together by German soldiers.

"East Front—There is nothing to report.

"Balkan Front—The positions are unchanged."

POPE MODIFIES OIL ORDER DURING WAR

Rome, March 11.—Pope Benedict today made further concessions to modernism in issuing a decree permitting Catholic churches throughout the world to use other oils than olive in the lamps before the main altars. In rare cases even electric lights will be permitted until the end of the war. Bishops in all parts of the world complained that the war had caused great scarcity of olive oil and had increased the price to an almost prohibitive figure.

WAR SUMMARY

Floating mines in inland waters figure in the dispatches for the first time. The French statement relates that the Germans dropped mines in the Meuse River at St. Mihiel, presumably in the hope that they would float down to Verdun, blow up some bridges and cut French communications. The mines were "fished out," the statement adds, before they did any damage.

A German hydroplane fleet, Berlin says, bombarded a Russian battleship, five destroyers and several merchantmen off the Kali-Akra promontory, which juts out from the western shore of the Black Sea. The Berlin dispatch says that, although the hydroplanes were vigorously shelled, they landed bombs on some of the destroyers and then returned safely to their base.

Sinking of the French line steamer Louisiane in the English channel is credited by Paris to a German submarine operating along the French coast, and another Paris dispatch says that the French line has just cancelled the intended sailing today of the steamer Lafayette from Bordeaux for New York.

American shippers are warned that Turkish coast waters off Asia Minor and Syria have been mined.

The British Official Press Bureau places the total German casualties to date at 2,667,372, including dead, sick, captured, missing and wounded. The dead are figured: of wounds, 625,936; of sickness, 26,538, making a total mortality of 662,474. The Paris Matin asserts that 1,400,000 Germans have been killed to date.

Two Strikers at Hood Plant Sent to Jail

Nazareth Varjabdian was sentenced to sixty days in the House of Correction in Waltham District Court for assault on Foreman John Hawley of the outer sole department of the Hood Rubber Company's factory at East Watertown.

Boghos Agahigian was fined $25 for assault on Lieutenant John F. Milmore of the Watertown police. On appeal they were held in $100 each.

Varjabdian and Agahigian were among the 112 operatives who struck for an increase of $2 a week. These two were doing picket duty Thursday morning. Strikers claim that Foreman Hawley tried to induce Varjabdian to return to work. The police say that Varjabdian struck Hawley and that, when Lieutenant Milmore came up, Agahigian assaulted the officer.

British Seize American Ship; Owners Protest

San Francisco, March 11. — The American steamer Edna, which left here under charter to carry nitrates from Chile to the West Indies, has been seized by a British cruiser and taken to Port Stanley, F. I. News of the seizure was received here today by Sudden & Christensen, the owners of the ship.

Washington, March 11.—Representative Kahn of California today lodged a protest with the State Department against the seizure by a British cruiser of the American-owned steamer Edna, which was en route from Chilean ports to the West Indies with a cargo of nitrate. The vessel sailed from Chilean ports on January 27. It is not known where she now is.

The Edna is owned by the Sudden & Christensen Company of San Francisco.

ALLIES TO KEEP CANNON ON LINERS

Washington, March 11.—The State Department learns that the allies will continue to arm their lines as in the past.

None here have been armed while within United States waters. They have carried guns in the Mediterranean however and it has been recently claimed that guns were put aboard British ships leaving American ports from British cruisers as soon as the merchantmen reached the high seas.

REJECT LANSING PLAN.

It is authoritatively stated that the allies have agreed to inform the United States that they cannot accept the proposal in Secretary Lansing's recent circular memorandum that a modus vivendi be entered into for the disarmament of belligerent owned merchant ships.

Conferences between the allies on this subject have ended, and formal replies to the American suggestion are expected soon.

Advices to the State Department from the embassies at London, Paris and Rome some time ago made it apparent that the disarmament plan had met with no favor, and the assumption that it would be rejected. The United States does not question the right under international law of merchantmen to arm for defence.

WAS MERE PROPOSAL.

Disarmament by agreement was proposed purely as a humanitarian expedient on account of the development of submarine warfare. Without such an agreement the law stands as it always has, and it was in recognition of this principle that the United States informed Germany that her announced intention of sinking armed merchant ships was inconsistent with assurances previously given in the Lusitania and Arabic cases.

In their replies, which it is understood will be couched in the friendliest terms, the allies will express appreciation of the high motives which moved the United States government in the interest of humanity to endeavor to remove the dangers to the lives of noncombatants; but they will express the view that the proposition voluntarily to surrender the right of a merchant ship to carry arms for her own defence would really amount to a change in the principle of international law itself, instead of being, as viewed by the State Department, merely a change in the application of the law or of the rules framed under the law.

Attention will be directed also to the fact that one of the cardinal principles of international law is that no change shall be made in the law itself as applied to warfare during the progress of hostilities.

FRANCE AND ITALY IN MOROCCO PACT

By International News Service.

Paris, March 11.—A new link in the growing friendship between France and Italy was forged today. The following official statement relating to a closer entente in Northern Africa was issued:

"Premier Briand and the Italian ambassador have signed a declaration whereby the Italian government renounces privileges and capitulations in the French zone of Morocco.

"The Italians there will henceforth be subject to the French tribunals. This act of sympathy and confidence by the Italian government in the new French institutions in Morocco should further strengthen the ties binding the allied nations."

ZEPPELIN RAIDS AFFECT VOTERS

London, March 11.—After having been defeated in the recently widely advertised bye-election in the Mile-End district for a seat in the House of Commons, Pemberton Billing, who resigned from the Royal Naval air service to stand for Parliament on the issue of better protection against Zeppelin raids, has been elected member of East Hertfordshire by a majority of 1,031 over the Coalition candidate, Brodie Handerson.

Mr. Billing made a denunciation of Great Britain's alleged inefficiency in air service the basis of both his campaigns.

THINK LOST SHIP WAS IN CANADIAN TRADE

Montreal, March 11.—The steamship Hermatrios, reported sunk off the coast of France, is believed here to be the British steamship Harmatris, which since last Autumn has been running between Canadian ports and Hovre and Bordeaux. She was 6,237 tons gross burden.

CANCEL SAILING OF FRENCH LINER TO U. S.

Paris March 11.—The French line has canceled the sailing of the steamer Lafayette, which was to leave Bordeaux today for New York.

The Lafayette arrived at Bordeaux March 6, having been delayed several days on her voyage from New York.

"PRO-ALLY" HELPS GERMAN MILK FUND

The citizens' committee for food shipments (Massachusetts branch), has received contributions of $202.55 to send milk to the babies of Germany and Austria. R. F. A. Schwarzm, with $100, is the largest contributor. One donor, who signs himself "Pro-Ally," has been impressed by the merits of the cause.

CHRISTIANS WELL USED IN PALESTINE

Berlin, March 11.—The Greek Patriarch at Jerusalem has telegraphed denying reports that Christians have been maltreated in Palestine. The patriarch asserts that the Christians are in complete safety.

HOW OFTEN DOES YOUR LAMP NEED CLEANING? Your lamps, oil cookstove or oil heater will not need cleaning half so often if you fill them with clean, reliable oil—Socony (So-CO-ny) Kerosene Oil.

Very often the lamp is blamed for smoking, smelling and forming wick crust, when it is really due to the use of inferior oil.

Kerosene is not all alike by any means—any more than all butter is alike. Or all flour, or all sugar.

Socony Kerosene Oil is the name of the Standard Oil Company of New York's best kerosene. It is manufactured by improved refining methods, and every gallon conforms to certain fixed standards of quality.

Say "Socony" to the grocer's boy when he comes to take your oil can. Look for the Socony sign on your grocer's window. It is a quality sign and one of the easiest ways to recognize a reliable dealer.

WE SELL SOCONY KEROSENE OIL STANDARD OIL CO. OF N.Y.

SAFEST and BEST

We recommend the following oil burning devices as the best of their kind: New Perfection Oil Cookstoves and Water Heaters, Perfection Smokless Oil Heaters, Rayo Lamps and Lanterns.

The Fate of Those Who Break the Moral Laws

"There are mothers to be found, in plenty, who bring up their daughters with the idea that fine apparel, motor cars and frequent appearance at public entertainment are important factors in life; more important than absolute discretion, modesty and a spotless reputation," she writes.

Again She Writes:

"The young women who allow their names to be associated unpleasantly with married admirers can be divided into three classes—the mercenary girl, who is a result of wrong education; the over-sentimental girl, who is conceited and dangerously sympathetic, and the over-ripe girl."

CROWD ATTENDS FUNERAL OF KEARNS

St. Mary's Church in Waltham was filled at the funeral of former Mayor Thomas P. Kearns, whose body was found in the Charles River at Watertown on Wednesday afternoon.

Waltham City Hall was closed from 9 to 12. Business places were closed from 10 to 11. Flags were put at half-staff on City Hall and other public buildings and on many business blocks.

City officials, clerks of departments, details from the fire and police bodies and delegations from fraternal organizations attended the service.

The funeral was held from the house at No. 93 Bacon street, with the church service beginning at 10 o'clock. Requiem high mass was celebrated by the Rev. Timothy Brosnahan, P. R., of St. Mary's. The Rev. Peter Foley was deacon and the Rev. Joseph Casey sub-deacon.

The honorary pallbearers were Mayor Edwin O. Childs of Newton, General Manager George M. Cox of the Middlesex & Boston Street Railway, former Mayor Patrick J. Duane of Waltham, now Deputy United States Marshal; former Congressman John J. Mitchell, former Alderman William P. Rooney, President Henry F. Eaton of Waltham Board of Aldermen, Police Chief James H. McKenna of Waltham and Mayor Frank Hinckley of Woburn.

The active pallbearers were: William Linn, Waltham Council, Knights of Columbus; Matthew Connolly, Division 12, A. O. H.; Thomas Kenny, United Irish League; Martin Carney, Waltham Aerie of Eagles; Peter F. Dugan, Loyal Order of Moose; Samuel Titelsky and Matthew A. Dunne, Waltham Lodge of Elks, and John Canard of Belmont. Interment was at Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

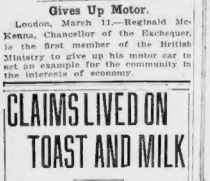
London, March 11.—Reginald McKenna, Chancellor of the Exchequer, is the first member of the British Ministry to give up his motor car to set an example for the community in the interests of economy.

CLAIMS LIVED ON TOAST AND MILK

Waverley Lady in Desperate Way Says She Was Cured by Plant Juice.

"I can't" is the expression of the brain that is harassed by sickness, whereas "I can" is indicative of a strong, healthy and ambitious mind. Health is the element of success, and hundreds of men and women in this city are having their health restored by the new system tonic, Plant Juice.



MRS. EDITH STUART.

now being introduced in Boston for the first time at the drug department of the Houghton & Dutton Co.'s store.

The other day Mrs. Edith Stuart of Waverley made the following statement of how she was relieved by Plant Juice. She stated:

"For several years I have suffered with stomach trouble, indigestion and dyspepsia and my stomach was all bloated with gas and drained me of pain at times. For about seven years I could eat any meal or any tables of any kind and could hardly keep any food in my stomach. I was restless and nervous and could not sleep at night. I lived on tea, toast and milk and felt weak and miserable all the time; had pains all over my body, a sallow complexion and my liver was torpid and sluggish. I was just as tired in the morning when I got up as when I went in bed at night. I read about Plant Juice in the papers, and have taken it for about a month; now when I get up in the morning I feel like a different woman—refreshed and rested. I can eat any kind of food without distress, have no more gas, and am feeling fine. No more aches or pains for me, as Plant Juice has cured me. My skin is beautifully clear and I can say that Plant Juice is certainly a wonderful medicine for any woman."

Such words as these and those of many others which have been printed have wide influence, for they come from people of standing and integrity who have given Plant Juice a fair trial and have been benefited thereby.

The Plant Juice Man is at the drug department of the Houghton & Dutton Co.'s store, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

YOU NEED NOT SUFFER WITH BACKACHE AND RHEUMATISM

For centuries GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has been a standard household remedy in kidney, liver, bladder and stomach trouble, and all diseases connected with the urinary organs. The kidneys and bladder are the most important organs of the body. They are the filters, the purifiers of your blood. If the poisons which enter your system through the blood and stomach are not entirely thrown out by the kidneys and bladder, you are doomed.

Weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, despondency, backache, stomach trouble, headache, pain in loins, and lower abdomen, gall-stones, gravel, difficulty when urinating, cloudy and bloody urine, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, all warn you to look after your kidneys and bladder. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules are what you need.

They are not a "patent medicine" nor a "new discovery." For 200 years they have been a standard household remedy. They are the pure, original imported Haarlem Oil of your grandmother's time used, and are perfectly harmless. The healing, soothing oil soaks into the cells and lining of the kidneys and through the bladder, driving out the poisonous germs. New life, fresh strength and health will come as you continue this treatment. When completely restored to your usual vigor, continue taking a capsule or two each day. They will keep you in condition and prevent a return of the trouble.

Do not delay a minute. Delays are especially dangerous in kidney and bladder trouble. Death by slow poison is killing many a man young in years who has made the fatal mistake of failing to understand the warnings of kidney trouble. All reliable druggists sell GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. They will refund the money if not as represented. In three sizes, sealed packages. Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL. Accept no substitutes.

SYLVIA WARREN DANCE GUEST

SOCIETY GIRLS ARE USHERS AT CHARITY PLAY.

MISS SYLVIA WARREN.

She is a striking figure at the Hasty Pudding Club dance at Harvard. Her mother is Mrs. Samuel Warren of Beacon street.

Miss Sylvia Warren, daughter of Mrs. Samuel Warren of Beacon street, was a striking figure among the large group of debutantes and younger Boston society girls who thronged the Hasty Pudding Clubhouse at a fashionable dance last night.

She is vice-president of the Vincent Club. Miss Warren, who received her finishing education abroad, has taken a prominent part in recent society events. She is popular among the younger set, as her election to the Vincent Club office indicates.

Sub-debutantes and Harvard freshmen will attend the dance at the Somerset Hotel tonight. This is the fifth of the series of these affairs that are keenly anticipated by the younger set.

GUESTS FLEE NEW YORK HOTEL FIRE

New York, March 11.—Guests at the Hotel Gerard were driven into the street early today by a fire which started in the basement and soon filled the corridors with thick smoke. The Gerard was formerly one of the best-known hotels in New York, and Mrs. Jefferson Davis spent the last years of her life there.

CARMEN PRESS MARTIN CASE AT WOBURN

Returns today from the strike vote taken through the night by local 472, Carmen's Union of Woburn, on the Bay State Street Railway Company's system, showed that the eighty-four members of the union voted unanimously to "push the John Martin affair to the limit."

The vote result was telegraphed to International President William D. Mahon at Detroit, with a request that he investigate. The union officers await a reply.

Martin, a Bay State conductor, was president of Woburn local two years ago. Two months ago he was laid off indefinitely on charge of failing to operate a signal in Richards square in Medford. His motorman, James Fitzgerald, said to be the only non-union carman on Woburn division, was laid off one day. After investigation Martin was discharged. Martin declared the signal had been set, so he sent his car ahead.

Union officers demanded his reinstatement. On the company's refusal President Thomas Keating and other officers of the union ordered a vote on the question of fighting the case to a finish.

MRS. STOREY HELD FOR KIDNAPING

Worcester, March 11.—Minnie H. Storey, divorced wife of Frank C. Storey of North Main street, pleaded not guilty in the Central District Court today to the charge of kidnaping her two children, Dorothy and Ralph, aged eleven and nine respectively.

Judge Samuel Utley held the woman in $1,000 bonds for a hearing on Wednesday next, the continuance being requested by her counsel, David F. O'Connell of this city.

Mrs. Storey, who was brought to this city last night from New-castle, Indiana, where she was arrested with the children, broke down after leaving court and was taken back to her cell hysterical. The children are with their father.

CHARGE EFFORT TO INFLUENCE GRAND JURY

Rumors that attempts had been made to influence Grand Jurors who indicted Frank Luciano, North End banker, for the murder of Eugenio Covino, a business associate, were said to be under investigation by Assistant District Attorney Daniel V. Mclsaac.

No definite statement could be secured, but it is understood that ten grand jurors were approached outside the courthouse. It was also reported that one witness was approached by the Grand Jury room without being allowed to testify because he had attempted to influence a juror.

Covino was shot on the night of February 14 at the corner of Lewis and North streets, a few hours after Luciano had been arrested on an indictment warrant charging him with the larceny of property valued at $6,500.

According to the police Luciano upbraided Covino for causing his arrest and then shot him through the head. Covino died at the Relief Hospital while the physicians were operating.

POLICE STORY OF SHOOTING.

Luciano, who lives in Park street, Arlington, and Covino, a resident of Charter street, North End, are members of the banking firm of D. & F. Luciano, No. 153 North street. It was claimed that Covino and Francesco Carvitti of Newton gave Luciano $6,500 worth of property as security for shares in the Neapolitan Wine and Importing Company of North street. Such was, according to Covino, to have a salary of $25 a week, in addition to the profits. Covino and Carvitti claimed the condition of the firm was not as represented and complained to the police and Grand Jury. An indictment warrant was obtained, charging Luciano in one count with larceny of an auto truck, horses and wagons from Covino, and in the second count of money, a check and promissory note from Carvitti.

At the request of Attorney Samuel L. Bailen, Judge Morton of the Superior Court appointed Judge Frank Leverett temporary receiver for the depositors of the "bank."

A bill in equity was also filed against Luciano and his nephew, John Luciano, restraining them from disposing of any property purchased by money, given them by "depositors."

It is said that the so-called bank had no charter, and business carried on in an irregular way. Persons who wished to deposit money were allowed to do so, and were given pass books, but these books were said to contain no instrument or conditions.

It is also reported that since the shooting depositors who sought to draw out their savings were told that the money was invested and that there was no cash on hand.

The Grand Jury returned forty-seven indictments, six of them roubills. A no-bill was returned in the case of Richard L. May, United States acting, in connection with the death of John B. Nelson, who died at the City Hospital as the result of an alleged fight with May.

BIG CAMPAIGN BY CIGARETTE MEN

The first gun in a mammoth campaign in the interest of Egyptienne Straights cigarettes was fired at a dinner in the Hotel Georgian to the New England cigarette men of the American Tobacco Company.

The campaign, which was laid out by Ernest J. Goulston, the Boston advertising agent, is to begin shortly, and is expected to be one of the largest Ne England has ever seen.

Forty men were present at the dinner, and addresses were made by R. L. Armstrong, head of the cigarette department of New England for the American Tobacco Company; B. Bernstein, personal representative of Vice President George Hill, who has entire charge of the cigarette sales of the company; Mr. Goulston, and M. A. Long, T. F. Harmon and A. H. Hyde, the respective heads of the three New England divisions on cigarette sales.

The general efficiency of newspaper advertising sales was praised by both Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Goulston, and the former declared that in his fifteen years' experience with the American Tobacco Company he had never known the equal of a campaign where a judicious use of newspaper space predominated in working out the publicity plan for developing cigarettes.

ROOSEVELT MEN URGED TO STAY

Charles E. Burbank of East Bridgewater, former Progressive State Senator, has issued a statement on the refusal of Colonel Roosevelt to allow the use of his name in the local primaries. He urges the Roosevelt delegates to remain in the field, and asks voters to select their own "slate" of delegates-at-large.

"Unless my opinion is modified by coming events," says Mr. Burbank, "I am for Mr. Bird, Governor McCall, Senator Lodge and Mr. Cushing—Senator Lodge wholly because of his attitude on foreign problems and his loyalty to Roosevelt."

Bird and Cushing are Roosevelt delegates; the other two are unpledged, and, with Senator Weeks and former Senator Crane, constitute the slate put into the field by the "Old Guard."

Fitz Denies Any Trade with Curley

In an editorial in the Republic, Mayor Fitzgerald denies the existence of any trade between him and Mayor Curley in return for the latter's proffer of support to the Fitzgerald campaign for the United States Senate.

In his editorial Mr. Fitzgerald refers to former Governor Walsh, also a possible candidate, as a man lacking decision and one who cannot be depended upon. Former Mayor Fitzgerald declares that the famous Faneuil Beach meeting between him and the Mayor, at which John F. McDonald is said to have brought them together, had no political significance at all. He said:

Mayor Curley and former Mayor Fitzgerald have made no trade. The Faneuil Beach meeting had no political significance, and no deals were even suggested, let alone made.

His Honor's offer of support for the United States senatorship was voluntary, with no strings attached.

The Mayor here told his intimates that from his experience in Washington he is convinced that Washington needs a "live wire" who knows the ropes and will get results, and he thought Fitzgerald that one.

He has no feeling against Walsh, except that he is convinced, as are most people who dealt with the former Governor when on Beacon Hill, that he lacks decision and cannot be depended upon; a very marked weakness in a public official.

BROOKLINE TO HAVE NURSE INQUIRY

Philip S. Parker, chairman of the Brookline Board of Selectmen and Board of Health, has announced that he will immediately begin an investigation of conditions at the Brookline Contagious Hospital.

At a meeting of the appropriations committee it was charged by a member that nurses passed from one contagious ward to another without taking any precautions against carrying germs. He explained that he had been told nurses were in the habit of going from a scarlet fever ward to a diphtheria ward, and thereby exposing the patients to both diseases. He also stated that several doctors had recommended that no children be sent to the hospital.

The man who made these charges took pains to explain that, personally, he knew nothing of their truth or falsity, but was merely repeating what he had been told. He also said he made it plain that there was no attempt to criticise the management.

The committee voted an increase of $100 in salary to Edward McKittrick, clerk of the Board of Selectmen, who also acts as secretary of the Planning Board.

BIG BATTLESHIP NEVADA PUT IN COMMISSION

The battleship Nevada, of 27,500 tons displacement, launched July 11, 1914, at the Quincy yards of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, was placed in commission at the Charlestown Navy Yard at 1:30 this afternoon. She is a sister ship of the Oklahoma.

The ceremony took place on the quarterdeck, where were assembled about 600 commissioned officers and sailors and the marine band. Captain William R. Rush, commandant, and other officers of the yard, escorting their wives and daughters.

With officers and crew in attendance, Ensign D. F. Hasbrouck, aide to Captain of the yard, read the order of Secretary Daniels placing the ship in commission and appointing Captain William S. Sims to command. In the absence of Captain Sims, who is at Washington on official business, Commander F. F. Tompkins, executive officer of the ship, assumed temporary command.

Commander Hasbrouck gave the signal for the hoisting of the national ensign from the stern staff, and the captain's pennant from the foremast of the main truck. The marine band played "The Star-Spangled Banner," the crew manned the starboard rail, while Commander Hasbrouck formally turned the ship over to Commander Tompkins, who immediately gave his first order, "Set the watch." This concluded the ceremonial. The crew then left the ship and commander and went to quarters.

The full complement of the ship's crew will be 1,016 officers and men. The ship will be manned by men of the Navy Yard for her ordnance equipment and undergo some changes, it is understood that this work will consume two or three months.

The Nevada is 583 feet long, with a beam of 95 feet 2½ inches, and a mean draft of 28 feet and 6 inches displacement of 27,500 tons. Her boilers are fired exclusively with oil, and her normal speed is 20½ knots, she is fitted with the first three-gun turrets ever placed on an American warship. Her main battery consists of ten 14-inch guns, and are eleven tons heavier than those on the Argentine battleship Rivadavia.

Each of the turrets has three fourteen-inch guns, the most powerful on any United States battleship and excelled by only a few guns in the British and German navies. The guns are of forty-five-calibre, a single shell weighs 1,400 pounds, and the entire battery is able to throw 14,000 pounds of metal at one discharge.

DESTROYER PORTER ON HER SPEED RUNS

Rockland, Me., March 11.—A speed approximating the contract specifications of 29½ knots was made in three of the standardization runs of the torpedo boat destroyer Porter, but a snow squall prevented the former from trying out the limit of her speed. It is expected that the five top-speed runs will be completed tomorrow. Installation tests will be made today.

Marguerite Banks to Sing at Shubert in 'Alone at Last'

Although Marguerite Namara was a member of the Boston Opera Company during the opening season of that organization, Boston will hear her sing for the first time in private when she appears in the title role of "Alone at Last," which comes to the Shubert, March 20.

As Marguerite Banks of California she was announced for the opening season, but before she had made her debut a dispute arose which entirely severed her connection with the company. She went to Paris and was fortunate enough to catch the best and longest run, and had several seasons of concert work in the most exclusive Paris salons.

After remaining abroad some years she returned to this country and engaged to concert with the Sousa band, and by the shortest list Fall to head the cast of "Alone at Last," the latest Lederer operetta.

MAN HURT WHEN FIRE ENGINE HITS WAGON

Fire Engine 11, with quarters in Dudley street, collided with a grocery wagon driven by Joseph Rosenbaum of Normandy street, Roxbury, while responding to a box at No. 825 Albany street. The driver of the team was thrown out of the wagon and received a bruised leg. He was taken to the City Hospital. Lieutenant Thomas Callahan, the driver of the engine, escaped without injury.

GAS KILLS WOMAN IN DORCHESTER HOME

Mrs. Florence Young, 50s, of Glendale street, Dorchester, was found unconscious on the kitchen floor of her home by a gas inspector and Patrolman Michael Dunn of the Dorchester police station. She was dying from a combination stove, and a coroner's jury found that the death was accidental when she was pronounced dead.

LEADER TELLS SUCCESS OF 'BABY WEEK'

"Baby Week is a great success." Such was the enthusiastic statement of Mrs. Arthur H. Merrill, who is chairman of the Baby Week Committee, had just been congratulated by Mrs. Samuel McCall, who made the rounds of the exhibitions. She said:

We have been astonished at the way the public and the newspapers have taken hold of "Baby Week." Everything has exceeded our most optimistic hopes. All of the lecture clinics at the department stores have been crowded out with mothers of the season. Although "Baby Week" came suddenly on the people, the doctors and the nurses responded in a way which should create a huge pro-baby sentiment that death rates will decrease rapidly among babies during the next few years.

If there is a "Baby Week" next year I am sure we will be obviously swept off their feet with enthusiasm.

As an indication of the attitude of the Boston public Mrs. Merrill drew the attention to the fact that 14,000 babies were born in this city. Each baby represents $10 cents as a minimum that the merchants paid for in advance of that sum.

In Brookline Dr. Hastings told a group of mothers how to choose the proper milk, and recommended the use of pasteurized rather than raw milk, especially for children. The lecture is for invalids and infants alone.

No milk, it should be stated, that is not guaranteed against tuberculosis. This may be done by pasteurization, or by the use of certificates that the herd giving the milk is in healthy condition.

The program today at the Jordan Marsh Company store included a lecture by Dr. Frederick Hodgdon, Boston University School of Medicine professor, on "Advantages of Hospital Care of the Mother and Baby," and a lecture by Dr. J. Herbert Young on the "Work of the Milk and Baby Hygiene Association."

At Filene's Dr. Annie Hamilton talked on "The Care of the Baby," Dr. Ingrid Nelson on "The Care of the Nose, Throat and Ear in Infants," Miss B. Tobin "Prevention of Disease in Infants," and Dr. W. R. P. Emerson on "A Complete Unit for the Well Child."

The lectures today at Houghton & Dutton's were: "Pure Milk," by Ralph Taylor, and "Baby Nurses," by Miss Mae R. Dickinson.

Hose Bound for South Cady Already at Camp

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

CLEVELAND, O., March 11.—No pennants have been won yet, but you see we are still in the land of snow and ice.

It needs the heat of the South to set some men talking flags, despite the face that the advance guard of the World's Champions looks longingly forward to the hot weather at the Springs. The heat of the sun and that of the water will not affect Manager Bill Carrigan.

Carrigan found time, between descriptions of his life at his home in Lewiston, to observe that he felt his team had a good chance to win another American League championship. He is conservative in all things, more especially this team of his. If they were not world beaters, Bill would do just what he has mapped out, and the fact that they wear the championship emblem will not cause him to let up in the least.

The boys may be in fire a shorter training trip than many, but they will go some during the time they spend in the Vapor Valley.

Bill is patient and painstaking and is justly proud of his men, but he is too old a campaigner not to realize that the other clubs look strongest and are thus apt to give more trouble.

BILL CANNOT SEE YANKEES.

He has a fine respect for the White Sox, and figures them as being a powerful aggregation, as ever. The added strength in the New York club doesn't cause him to worry, for he figures the Yankees will be mighty lucky if they finish the season with the Red Sox series to their credit.

"You said something," he remarked, when his pitching staff was mentioned as being about the best in the league. "That is where we have a bigger advantage this season than last. You know, I didn't have a pitching staff to start with last year, and now I have, and some of it in the catching department, too.

"We are going to try to get off in the lead. Every game counts in a season's work and I figure the Red Sox as able to take the lead and stand the strain of being chased.

"I shall not know about Joe Wood until I see to Hot Springs. I have not heard from him and I really don't expect him to appear unless he feels that his arm is right for the season. It would be useless otherwise. Joe, if his arm is gone as a pitcher, could make good in some other position in a ball club.

CONCERNING JOE WOOD.

"I figure that he could be made to hit if he had the practice or was up there as often as a regular is during a season. Still, I don't know as this would appeal to Joe.

"You know, he has a fine farm in Pennsylvania, one that he hasn't really worked as yet, save for what he wanted for his table. I rather think Joe will some day begin farming in earnest, so that when he gets a little older the farm will be the means of support worth while.

"Speaker is another player I haven't heard from, so do I expect to until he walks in at the Hotel Majestic at the springs.

"This all goes to show that the Reds State golf club will not prevail in the Red Sox camp, and the feeling is also prevalent that Joe's pitching days are over.

The World's Champions are traveling as befits their station, in a private car, where cigar smoke is thick and the bridge whist fiends hold forth. A bag of golf sticks started trouble right from the jump. Harold Janvrin, Henriksen and Paul Lannin began a putting contest in the aisle, with a "hole" improved by a sheet of paper fastened to the rug. It was a spirited contest, with Harold and Paul Lannin showing the class until James C. Winslow Greene butted in. He broke up the game by holding out to two.

HENRIKSEN MAY REMAIN.

Janvrin appears to have little weight to lose off, but Henriksen could use a rubber shirt to advantage. Pitchers Dick Wheeler and Marty McHale got aboard the car at Albany, while the party had about two hours' wait. These boys look fit and are filled with the enthusiasm which makes things worth while.

At St. Louis, where we are due this afternoon at 5:50, the following players will join: Ruth, Pennock, Thomas and Haley. Mrs. Ruth and Mrs. Pennock will also be in the party.

Manager Carrigan received a telegram from Secretary Riley, which stated that Forrest Cady was at Hot Springs and would hand Bill his signed contract just as soon as the backstop pulled in.

MORAN RESTS UP; JESS KEEPS AT IT

New York, March 11.—Whether Frank Moran would spend another day in idleness was not decided early today. The challenger may rest up until Monday before resuming his training, the finishing touches of which will be devoted more to boxing than any other preparation. Jess is keeping the pot boiling. There is no let up in his training. Today he added more boxing to his program and will go about a dozen rounds with his sparring partner.

THE RABBITS' COLUMN
By Walter J. Mecarnville
SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

Miami, Fla., March 11.

PERHAPS the day of rest won't look good to some of the boys. While we all like the game and the early work, we will nevertheless welcome a layoff even though it be but twenty-four hours. This has been a busy week and, thanks to the warm weather, none of us are suffering from sore arms.

TOMORROW Johnny Evers and myself are to be the guests of Alexander Steinert of Boston at dinner at the Royal Palm Hotel. I have known Mr. Steinert for several years and cherish him as a close friend. The fact that he owns stock in the club is indeed pleasing to me.

SOME of the fellows are going fishing tomorrow and others have invitations to participate in plain sailing and auto riding. I shall probably take a ride before dinner in order to view some of the wonderful show places which abound in this city.

I UNDERSTAND that my side partner from the AMERICAN, one John W. Moran, Jr., has been out to the Miami Beach Golf Club for a round. Furthermore, I understand he trimmed one or two of the scribes. This, however, is only understood, and is a matter which will probably never be definitely settled. Nothing would please me more than a round at the course, as I have always enjoyed playing golf.

LAST year Johnny Evers, Hank Gowdy, the scribes and myself enjoyed a number of pleasant rounds. Inasmuch as Secretary Davis has extended an invitation to all the boys to visit the course and play, I shall probably find time to avail myself of the chance. I understand that Mr. Davis' son is the Pacific Coast and Panama-Pacific amateur champion.

THIS fellow Knetzer looks better each time he works. He has a fine motion in throwing to either first or third. The way he caught Tyler napping yesterday was well worth watching. However, he probably had more than a little assistance from Eddie Fitzpatrick in catching "Ty" asleep at the hot corner.

RICO continues to show ability, as do Wilson and Cheney, and are going to be mighty tough working proposition to cut out a place on the team. Though I have to think of it some of the older fellows seem destined to go.

IT seemed good to hear Johnny Evers and Hank Gowdy chatting with each other yesterday. They don't mean anything to it, and today are as good friends as ever. Tom Allen, who is acting on the umpire won't hurt any. At that, we can't complain over Cleary's work.

SCHOOLBOYS CLASH AT HEMENWAY GYM

The annual Harvard interscholastic gymnastic meet is to be held this evening in the Hemenway Gymnasium, with Exeter, Andover and Groton strong teams to Cambridge, while Brookline High has entered three men. Exeter won last Winter's meet. The entries follow:

Horizontal Bars—Exeter, McConnell, Miller, Lamson; Newton, Andover, Smith, Varrell, Wilde; Brookline, Amsden, Pettingell.

Tumbling—Exeter, Allen, Nevin, Rogers, Lamson, Peirce, Varrell, Wilde; Brookline, Sheldon.

Parallel Bars—Exeter, Allen, Wright, Lawson, Rogers, Andover, Rock, Bounds, Smith; Chet Babington, Exeter, Nash, Worthing, Carish.

Flying Rings—Exeter, McConnell, Miller, Lamson, Andover, Granger, Miller, Moore, Wilde; Brookline, Amsden, Pettingell.

Tumbling—Exeter, Allen, Nevin, Rogers, Lamson, Peirce, Varrell, Wilde; Brookline, Sheldon.

Judges—Dr. Schrader, Cambridge; Dr. Lewis, Worcester; Cameron, Brookline Municipal Gymnasium.

Muldoon Sizes Up Jess Cofforth Picks Moran

By William Muldoon,
World's Greatest Physical Conditioner of Athletes.

I HAVE been asked to write for the AMERICAN my opinion as to how the heavyweight champions of the past compare with Jess Willard, the present titleholder. To begin with, let me say that in making these comparisons I am taking Willard as he is now and the others as they were when they were at their best.

I will begin with Johnson. The negro at his very best could defeat Willard as Willard is today. Jeffries as he was when he defeated Fitzsimmons could defeat Willard as he is now.

I doubt if Fitzsimmons at his best could defeat Willard. It would be a very even battle. Corbett could not have beaten Willard.

Sullivan was never at his best. He was never 60 per cent. of what he could have been.

To the Winter of '88-89 he contracted a severe illness that nearly carried him away, leaving it impossible to estimate what Sullivan could have been. I patched him up, but many times in making the repairs I found only the ruins of nature's great work.

And even then, such as I could make of the odds and ends that were left, he was able to win the championship of the world under prize ring rules and hold it until this day.

He won and held his title on the turf, bare-fist, with wrestling allowed. He fought for two hours under the broiling sun, with the thermometer registering high up in the nineties.

He showed no fatigue and was able to vault over the ropes and sprint a quarter of a mile to catch the train immediately after the contest was over. I mention this to show what this man might have been had he been temperate in all his habits.

Sullivan would certainly have defeated Willard.

Paddy Ryan, from whom Sullivan won the championship, was not an athlete nor a great fighter. Willard could defeat him easily. Jess would have defeated Joe Goss, from whom Ryan won the title. Tom Allen, who lost the title to Goss, could have never stood off Willard. Jem Mace, in his best day, would make Willard whip himself.

Now for other heavyweights of today. Sharkey would flex Dillon. Mc-Coy would defeat Wolhert. Joe Chevalski would defeat Battling Levinsky, and if there are a few other heavyweights that I can't call to mind just now, Billy Madden's champion, Gus Ruhlin, would clean them all up.

Peter Jackson, the colored man, was the greatest of heavyweights in this country, and would defeat Willard.

The present champion's greatest asset is his weight and height combined. He has good habits and lives a clean life. It remains to be proven whether his superior size is really a great advantage. Past records are not in favor of it.

Anything over six feet two inches is a disadvantage. Any weight over 210 pounds is a disadvantage. It makes the man slow and awkward. This man Willard may prove to be an exception, but we yet have to have evidence to that effect.

Up to the present day Willard hasn't done anything worthy of great consideration, and in this contest he will not have an opportunity to show at his very best.

TECH 1919 STAR ON MAT.

The Tech "freshies" disposed of the sophomore wrestlers, 24-8. Davis, McFarland, McMorron, Parsons, Sidwell, Kitchen and Parker won bouts.

By James W. Coffroth,
Famous California Boxing Promoter.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 11.—Frank Moran, in my opinion, has an excellent chance to beat Jess Willard IF—

I mean this. If Moran goes into the ring entirely free from the awe of meeting the world's heavyweight champion; if he is inspired and fights the same as he would an ordinary opponent he will win. I figure Moran a much more polished fighter than Willard.

The ideal weight for a heavyweight is from 190 to 210 pounds. A man of this weight is big enough to fight anything that walks on two feet. When a boxer goes over the 210-pound mark the weight advantage is offset by the loss of speed. Moran has nothing to fear because he is outweighed by the champion. Frank is the better boxer. He is Willard's superior in every angle of the ring game. And this is a grand chance for him to win big league laurels by whipping the man who holds the championship.

In all truth I must say that I never have regarded Willard as an ideal champion. He fought Gunboat Smith in my arena. In the second round the Gunner, outweighed by many pounds, picked a couple of teeth-rattlers against Willard's jaw, and for the next eighteen rounds Jess did nothing but box on the defensive. Smith beat Moran in my ring, too, but Moran made a fight of it.

Before comparing the present champion with old-timers, I don't believe Willard would have had one chance in a hundred of beating any of the veterans. Fitzsimmons would have stopped Jess in from one to three rounds. Jeffries would have taken longer, but would have been a sure winner. Corbett would have simply pecked Willard to pieces without taking a serious blow in return.

I am not one of those who harp about "the men of ten years ago," but the AMERICAN asks for my honest opinion and I am giving it—Willard is not in the same class with the Corbetts, Fitzsimmonses and Jeffries.

The old Langford! First degree murder!

B. KAUFF EXPECTED TO GO SOUTH TODAY

New York, March 11.—Bennie Kauff, the temperamental outfielder, will leave here today for Marlin, Tex., to join the New York Giants—unless he changes his mind before train time. It is said he has been guaranteed a $5,000 bonus by the Giant owners and that this has influenced him to withdraw his demand for an equal amount from Harry F. Sinclair, who sold Ring to McGraw for $45,000.

RING RESULTS

Lowell, March 11.—Walter Butler of Revere knocked out his remarkable winning streak by a decision during thirty rounds of fighting with substituted for "Dick" Stosh of Chelsea, who had in their twelve-round bout. Butler's fight throughout. In the semi-windup Teddy Murphy of Boston outpointed Young Ketchof of Lawrence in a 10-round encounter.

Chicago, March 11.—Word has reached here that George (Knockout) Brown of Chicago, won the decision over Fritz Holland in a twenty-round bout at Sydney, Australia.

Pittsburg, March 11.—"Mickey" Brown of Malden and "Kid" Lee of Chelsea went ten rounds to a draw at the Pittsburg A. A. George Brooks and Joe Souza drew and Charley Ferrara finished Carl O'Neil in the third round.

'If House Sold Out Will Run Around $145,000'—Rickard

NEW YORK, March 11.—The promoters of the Willard-Moran fight on March 25 announced today that if the house is sold out it will total around $145,000.

Tex Rickard is debating on the advisability of insuring both fighters against accidents, the policy to call for $75,000. Rickard feels that if the fight is called off he will lose a sum close to that amount.

Tuohey Lines Up Mat Stars for His Carnival

Promoter George Tuohey is back in Boston after a hurry-up trip to the West, where the wrestling game is booming as never before in the history of the sport, due to Joe Stecher's great work.

While this boom has boosted the prices of wrestlers' services to almost prohibitive figures, Tuohey has rounded up a lot of high-grade talent for his carnival in Mechanics Building, March 22, when he plans to show Americus, Ed (Strangler) Lewis, Waldek Zbyszko and Karl Lemle against suitable opponents in finish matches.

Tuohey declares that the forthcoming Gotch-Stecher match is the one big topic in sporting circles in the West, and believes that if the men meet within 500 miles of Omaha all records for gate receipts at a sporting event in this country will be smashed.

"I would not be surprised if a purse of $100,000 was hung up for Gotch and Stecher," added Tuohey. "I already there have been several offers of $50,000, and the bidding has not yet really begun."

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

Marlin, Tex., March 11.—This camp is deserted by Giants today. Split into factions, Manager's men go to Dallas and Waco for games today and tomorrow with the Southerners.

Daytona, Fla., March 11.—A game between the men who trained at Hot Springs and those of the Dodgers here will be played this afternoon. Jack Combs is in charge of the Spring's bunch and is confident of beating his rivals, Wheat and Co.

Mineral Wells, Tex., March 11.—Joe Bush will be the star who completes the White Sox training squad here today, unanimously selected by players complimenting each other on their physical condition and vowing to take a day off.

Macon, Ga., March 11.—Many of the Yankees who are now from "Charley horse," but Manager Donovan believes in hard work to eradicate the stiffened muscle complaint. The team was out for practice early today.

Jacksonville, Fla., March 11.—Connie Mack sent the early arrivals of his athletes through a light workout today.

Charlottesville, Va., March 11.—Washington will play its first game today, lining up with the Virginia University squad. Gallia, Johnson and Shaw will pitch for the Senators.

Waxahachie, Tex., March 11.—Manager Wilbert Robinson and Coach Wilbur Good of the Brooklyn Nationals were busy today, but Manager Jennings hoped to be able to use Clyde Milan in the exhibition game at Fort Worth today.

Dawson Springs, Ky., March 11.—With the temperature hugging the freezing mark, Manager Griffith's Washington baseball practice as a means of conditioning his Pirates and recruits for the season opener.

New Orleans, La., March 11.—The Indians had their first day out indoor today, because of last night's heavy rains which turned Fairmont Park into a swamp.

Braves in Fighting Mood Rico Continues to Shine

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

MIAMI, Fla., March 11.—This afternoon 125 cadets from a nearby school, a majority of whom come from the North, were to gather at Tatum Park to watch the Braves and Seminoles perform.

Incidentally it might be well to mention here that Captain Eddie Fitzpatrick of the Seminoles declares his team is out to win again today and show the Braves that yesterday's victory wasn't all luck.

All this, of course, is dependent upon the weather man. Last night and again this morning he wasn't at all too friendly. However, he did hold off long enough to allow the boys the regular forenoon workout, and he may possibly lay back long enough to allow them the regular nine-inning game this afternoon.

With nearly a week's work in, it's a pretty tired bunch of athletes George Stallings has in tow. During the past few days the boys have been more or less sore and tired but on the whole their condition is exceedingly better than it has been during any first week of a Spring season in several years. Lame arms are a thing of the past, but all hands are leg weary and anxious for the one day of rest to come.

WATCHING JAMES AND STRAND.

This morning Stallings paid particular attention to the work of "Big Bill" James and Paul Strand. This pair has caused him more or less concern during the past year and he is now especially anxious to know just what their true condition is. Though as yet neither of them has attempted to put anything on the ball, it is nevertheless a fact both look to be considerably better than they were a year, or even two years ago—in glorious 1914.

Today neither Sherwood Magee nor J. Keystone Evers remembers the arguments of yesterday afternoon. Both are in exceedingly amiable moods and are as chummy as one might expect them to be. Evers and Magee "ragged" one another rather hard yesterday afternoon, but such things are to be expected. It is an indication that both are still possessed of the right fight and that the Braves are due for another year of hard, though not rough, scrapping.

Umpire Cleary is to work this afternoon with the firm determination of giving the pugnacious members of the team plenty of experience at sitting down. Yesterday they "crabbed" continuously and got away with it. Today Cleary will be in there to chase them and any player who steps by the bounds will decorate the bench for the rest of the game. Stallings has told the umpire that he is king, and king he will be.

FITZPATRICK'S BIG DAY.

Yesterday Fitzpatrick was king of all he surveyed. He not only led his Seminoles to a 5-to-3 win, but in addition sent the leading runs over himself with a neat four-base blow past Sherwood Magee in the seventh inning.

Arthur Rico continued his good work during the game, getting a two-bagger and catching a neat game. Among other things he pegged neatly to second and caught one of the Shannon twins attempting to pilfer the sack. Chancey was in the game again and had a two-base hit which figured in the run making.

In all Stallings sent six pitchers into the fray, three on each side. Rudolph gathered in the honors, allowing not a single blow in five frames. Dick Janned six and passed but one. Art Nehf gave one hit in three innings; Strand and Knetzer four each in three frames; Allen five innings and Tom Hughes none in one inning.

GAME VERY HARD FOUGHT.

The game was hard fought throughout and aside from the continual "crabbing" about the umpiring, and the verbal passage between Evers and Magee, was cleanly played. However, the "crabbing" and the scrapping isn't bad at this time of year. Possibly before the season opens the boys will have all that stuff out of their systems.

Yesterday some of the members of the party went across the long wooden bridge to the Miami Golf Club, where a round was played. Three of the scribes played, and up to 9 o'clock this morning the city auditor and two bank cashiers hadn't determined just who won.

Among Bostonians observed at the practice game yesterday were Former Representative Burroughs of Ward 24 and a party of friends. Harry Beckwith and party were also in attendance. Today a big Boston representation is expected.

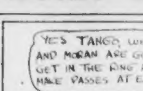
Groundkeeper "Dick" Shaner left for Boston last night.

HOCKEY TWIN BILL BOOKED BY LOUGEE

All three teams in the Boston Hockey League will be in action next Wednesday night. B. A. A. plays a championship game with Harvard Club and the Arena takes on New Haven. "Spider" Flynn and "Bunty" McKinnen, two old Boston favorites, will be in the New Haven lineup. The B. A. A.-Harvard game will lead the double-header.

Your Conscience Is the Judge from Whose Decision There Is No Court of Appeal

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS



SHUBERT GAINS A DRAW

All's Aggressiveness Earns Him Even Break, Although Bulk of House Thinks Campi Best.

Eddie Campi, the classy 120-pound Californian glovesman, unquestionably boxed rings around Al Shubert, the New Bedford bearcat, in their twelve-round combat before a packed house at the B. M. A. A., Hibernian Hall, Roxbury, last night, but in Referee Conley's opinion, the latter's constant aggressiveness earned him a 50-50 split. Hence, he rendered a draw verdict.

Promoter Bennett stated after the bout that it had not been arranged to have a dead heat decision bung up in the event of both boys being on their feet at the close.

Advance scenes indicated it was to be a bout to a finish. It was a fast, hard, honest set-to, with Campi handy winner in the opinion of the big bulk of the sporting talent present.

Still Conley, a rare, capable official, and one who heretofore has always given the boxer and clean hitter everything coming to him, evidently saw considerabl "stuff" that wasn't observed on the outside. Hence his verdict, a verdict which seemed way out of gear.

WHAT CAUSED THE DELAY.

Shubert delayed the starting of the battle practically half an hour. Hughie Devlin came over from New Bedford and handled Al in place of Johnny Miller of Fairhaven, his manager, that gent being on the sick list. Devlin declared that when Matchmaker Criss offered Shubert the match it was with the understanding that Campi, who outgrew the bantamweight division many months ago, would come in at 120 pounds ringside and Al wouldn't be forced to make any weight at all.

Devlin claims he had the conditions badly mixed up; that it was agreed for both boys to come in at 120. The result was a lot of merry arguing. Devlin refused to weaken an inch in the argument, and, if his claims were correct, he naturally would have been foolish to have put Al on the scales. Certainly Eddie Campi's mentor, was equally as insistent that Shubert either make weight, per the agreement as he understood it, or that there wouldn't be any fight unless the management announced the "mix up" from the ring.

After Bennett and Criss failed to win the argument on either end, they appeased Engel by saying they would have it announced from the ring at the end of the tenth round that Shubert had refused to make weight. Colonel Bennett was stirred to the announcement made earlier in the fracas, as he feared Shubert would leave the ring.

As it turned out no harm was done either way. Announcer Coffey made his stall at the end of the tenth canto, as had been agreed. While the fans shrieked Devlin down when Hughie tried to give his side, all the powwowing didn't make any difference in the proceedings.

"MIX UP" DOESN'T HURT.

The AMERICAN'S boxing reporter is a warm admirer of Shubert, whom he considers one of the greatest little battling machines of modern times. Likewise is Al the type of loser who always gives the fans the run they pay for. In some seventy or eighty bouts he has never before been knocked out and had a single decision go against him. And in every minute in every round in every combat he has worked on high from beginning to end; always being in, always asking for more smacks when jabbed or slapped.

Still, we figure Campi ran up a distinct shade on Shubert last night, Hector McInnes, who refereed the Shubert-Ertle battle at New Bedford Washington's Birthday, could have adjudged Al a winner, thinking that trifling little battler the world's champion, much easier, in our opinion, than Conley could have through with his draw verdict last night.

Campi appeared to be shading Shubert most of the way. He certainly excelled in the boxing; constantly had Shubert tied up into a knot; made Al do a heap of missing; landed far more cleaner blows and just as many hot ones, in fact, all in all, ran up a substantial margin, it appeared. Still Shubert, in the gameness, must be applauded for never backing up. Even when busy missing, frequently coming close to diving out of the ring on the fly. Al would come right back and pull the best he possibly could.

In the prelims P'atsy" De Luca stopped John McGuiness of Lynn, who "ashked" for leave Powers, in the fourth round, after the latter, some "blisher" as long as he was fresh, blew up; Jimmy Kenny, Waltham, proved himself a lively kid and won by a narrow margin over Young Ah Chung, the Salem Chinaman, and "Red" Kelley, Charlestown, and Frankie Barrett, Cambridge, went six very so-so rounds to a draw.

VICTORIAS ON WITH ARENA

Crack Canadian Seven in Boston with All its Stars — Three Periods Will Compose Battle.

ARENAS.		VICTORIAS.
Roach, Clanitzer, Lw	c.o., c.	Flanagan
Cooley, c	c., c.	Slater
Senaire, r.	r.,	Smith
Synnott, Desjardins, r.w.
	l.w.,	Sig. Slater
I. Small, Myers, c.p.	c.p.,	M. Flanagan
Clark, Layton, p.	p.,	Darling
A. Small, Mahoney, s.	s.,	Maiz

Time—Three 20-min. periods. Starting time, 8:15 p. m.

In facing the Victorias of Montreal tonight the Arena Hockey Club seven is going against an aggregation that has numbered among its victims the Winter Olympic champions and McGill University teams. Any team that tackles a young, ambitious hockey team will know before the session is over that it has been through a match. The Victorias are said to be one of the scrappiest sevens that has come out of Montreal in years, and with their speed can bodycheck with the best in the game.

This style of game does not fease the Arena youth, since the latter, in its game with the Harvard Club Wednesday night, showed that its man could take and give as hard and fast-ers as the other team.

The three twenty-minute periods is bothering Coach Keegan a little. The local team has never been asked to go over such a long route, and while he feels that its superior knowledge of local playing conditions gives it a distinct advantage, the fact that the Victorias all season have been going through three periods should offset this advantage to some degree.

Ever since the Victorias, with the great Eddie Bowie in the line-up at that time, raised havoc with the H. A. A. seven here a few years ago, there has been a dividing of local hockey followers. But the Montrealers to bringing back in slashing the Arena team against the Victorias the Arena management feels that it is the proper team to give the Canadians a stiff run.

The two men who will be carefully watched by the Arena players will be Cyril Flanagan and Sig. Slater. This pair of wings are said to be the slickest in inter circles of Eastern Canada, and to stop them will require the best of play. Fred Synnott and "Mickey" Roach.

BATCHELDER PILOT OF FRESHMEN CREW

George L. Batchelder, Jr., '18, is the temporary captain of Harvard's freshman crew. Tim Turner, Volkmann school lad is showing rare form at No. 6. In the big shift taking place yesterday Ted Bowie was shifted while four were dropped to Boat C. The quartet holding their places were Allen, Cobb, Coleman and Rinehart. The session was a particularly long one. No changes were made in the varsity boat.

B. A. A. SEVEN PLAYS BAKER & CO. IN N. Y.

New York, March 11.—The Boston A. A. hockey seven will move into a tie for first place with St. Nicholas in the Amateur Hockey League race if it wins tonight's game at St. Nicholas Rink.

Kelly Going at a Rapid Clip for McGraws

By International News Service.

Marlin, Tex., March 11.—Manager McGraw is fearful that his Giants will become too finely trained if the excellent weather continues. Yesterday Babe Schauer put so much steam on in the first practice game that McGraw had to order him to let up and give the batters a chance.

All of the players who reported with the first bunch are rounded down to almost mid-season form, with the exception of Babbington, whose throwing arm is somewhat stiff. The thermometer registered 90 degrees.

George Kelly, the San Francisco outfielder, and nephew of "Hi" Lange, is showing great improvement over his last year's form and may be seen in the outfield at the opening of the season, provided Robertson and Roush are not ready. Kelly's batting has been a feature of the practice games all week.

YANKEE PITCHERS ARE IN GREAT FORM

By International News Service.

Macon, Ga., March 11.—One noticeable feature of the practice games between the divided forces of the Yankees here has been the lack of hitting. Neither side has averaged more than three or four hits a day. Because of the supposed added batting strength of the Yankees, this weakness at bat has made quite an impression. Ray Fisher explained it today by saying that the pitchers were so far advanced that the batters can do little with them.

"I don't think I ever saw such good pitching at this stage of the training season," said Fisher. "Every pitcher in camp seems to be in great shape."

AMHERST MERMEN ON WITH CRIMSON

Harvard will meet Amherst in the Boston Y. M. C. A. tank tonight. Owing to the weakness of the Harvard team, no admission will be charged. Captain Fullerton is still unable to compete, but hopes to be ready for the Yal meet Monday. The entries for tonight's meet follow:

200-Yard Relay—Harvard, Westworth, Machado, Dathon, Rogers; Amherst, Baker, Jessup, Lemcke, Nelligan.

50-Yard Dash—Harvard, Davidson, Machado; Amherst, Lemcke, Nelligan.

Sharkey Picks Moran Also Looking for Kayo

By TOM SHARKEY.

Who Fought Jeffries, Corbett and Fitzsimmons, and Was the Greatest Title Contender That Never Won the Championship.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—I believe Frank Moran will defeat Jess Willard, the world's heavyweight champion, when they meet in Madison Square Garden, New York City, March 25. I have seen both men box and I really believe that the challenger from Pittsburgh is much the cleverer.

From what I hear out here on the Pacific Coast the majority of the fans who think that Willard will be victorious, base their opinion on the fact that the conqueror of Jack Johnson is a much bigger man than Moran.

This doesn't appeal to me. The difference in size between the men who will clash in the coming struggle is not as great as when I fought Jim Jeffries at Coney Island, November 3, 1899. At that time I weighed only 177 pounds and Jeff tipped the beam at 228 pounds. I was five feet eight inches tall, while Jeff stood six feet one and one-half inches.

I still believe that I was entitled to that decision. I am sure that Referee George Siler made a mistake when he raised Jeff's hand. At any rate, to this day, fight fans will tell you that this was the most sensational heavyweight battle ever staged in the East, if not in the world. The moving pictures showed that I carried the fight to Jeffries all the way, and that I really outpointed him.

Although Jeff broke three of my ribs, nobody knew about it but myself, and I didn't know it either, until I went to the hospital the next day.

Moran is an inch over six feet; Willard is six inches taller. Jess weighs 270 pounds or thereabouts, and I cannot see how he can be in condition and carry that much weight.

I know that Moran has a knockout punch and I think he will land it before the ten rounds are over. But even if he does not win by a knockout, I favor Frank to get the popular decision.

I cannot see how a boxer who could not win from "Gunboat" Smith, a light heavyweight, can expect to win from a big fellow like Moran. Smith weighed something like 180 pounds when he boxed Willard twenty rounds out here on the Coast, and Willard was easy for him. And Moran surely carries a fight to an opponent much harder and faster than Smith does.

Any man who weighs 190 pounds, about the weight of Jem Mace and John L. Sullivan when they were at their best, is big enough to lick anybody.

Gardner Lands Title at 18.2 Balk Line

By International News Service.

New York, March 11.—Edward W. Gardner of the Arlon Billiard Club, a former champion, won the Class A national amateur title at 18.2 balk line billiards last night. In the final match of the tournament, at the Arlon Club, Gardner defeated Morris D. Brown of Brooklyn, the runner-up, 400-351, in a tedious game lasting fifty-one innings.

A victory for Brown would have meant a tie for first place with Gardner.

Brown went into the lead at the start and held it for eleven innings, when Gardner took command and held the advantage to the finish. Brown played in poor luck, for whenever he had the balls in position for a long run he invariably missed an easy draw shot.

In the afternoon game Edgar T. Appleby defeated J. Fred Poggenberg, 400-321.

Jim Flynn Puts Up Game Fight With Dillon

New York, March 11.—Jack Dillon, the Indianapolis terror, and Jim Flynn, the gamest man in the fighting game, went through ten rounds last night at the Manhattan A. C. Dillon was there with the good clean punching and shaded Flynn, but for real bulldog grit you've got to hand it to Jim.

In the early part it looked as if Dillon would beat down this gallant fighter of champions, but Flynn had warhorse never backed up an inch. At the finish Flynn was fighting hard and tearing away at Dillon, while the latter was very much fatigued.

Third Time Ice Title Landed by Melrose

For the third year running Melrose High annexed the Interscholastic Hockey League championship by flaying Newton High, 4-0, in the season's deciding battle, at the Arena. A big crowd was in attendance, with the rival "rooters" showing as much enthusiasm as when attending a gridiron battle.

Melrose's victory was expected. Its squad showed the tightest of team work, hustled might and main throughout and was well entitled to the splendid conquest.

Captain Burt Nowell gamely played the game of his life, as he got a couple of bad tosses, but refused to quit. Tirrell, who was seen at his best, shot two goals, Nowell one and Leavitt one.

The Newton boys played plucky hockey and Goalie Ja Crosk kept the score down by making a lot of rattling good stops.

How Women Add to Charms

Garrett P. Serviss Writes Concerning the Genius of the Fair Sex for Self-Adornment Since the Days of the Cave Dwellers

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

THE pictures which accompany this article are full of philosophical suggestions. All over the world woman's principal occupation, when she follows her natural habit, is to add to the charms which nature gave her in order to make herself so much the more irresistible. To them that have more shall be given, and from them that have not shall be taken away even that which they have.

It is easy for women to increase their beauty and attractiveness, but when men try to adorn themselves they usually make a lamentable failure of it. Look at the Dyak girl of Borneo, with her waist-hoops, composed of hundreds of little brass rings crowded together on invisible cores of cane, and adorned with belts of silver coins, her necklace of beads and her hair ornament of silver filagree. No civilized belle is relatively a finer sight than she. And so, too, the Kaffir girl with her wonderful chignon, plays upon the susceptible hearts of her male admirers with irresistible effect.

A Sea Dyak Girl of Borneo in All Her Finery of Brass Corset, Bead Necklace and Filigreed Comb.

Mr. Serviss Points Out That Women's Genius for Self-Adornment Is Universal and Perennial. Here Is Shown the Kaffir Belle, with Her Remarkable Chignon, While the Dyak Girl, Above, Is Even More Elaborately Ingenious.

It is so everywhere. Read Herman Melville's account of the romantic belles of the cannibal village in the savage valley of Typee, or the narratives of the early explorers of the fascinating Pacific Island of Tahiti, where the women, fairer than any one had dreamed of finding in a Polynesian race, heightened their beauty by the arts of dressing, ornamentation and deportment. Thus they so affected the sensibilities of their white visitors that they had captains and mates, bosuns and tarry Jacks at their feet, while the hope of every crew of adventurers in the South Seas was that they might at least catch a glimpse of the charmers of that fairy island.

With beauty goes taste, the skill and the innate knowledge of self-adornment. The wise man takes his wife's advice in choosing his clothes. Woman's supremacy in this respect began long before history was written. There is proof that it existed in the days of the cave dwellers. I have seen pictures from prehistoric caverns in the Pyrenees where, in spite of the crudity of the drawings, the women are plainly distinguishable from the men by superior and characteristic personal adornment—chignons, gracefully draped garments and the suggestion of more sinuous bodily movements.

Don't permit yourself to doubt that there was "society" in those days, and that the women managed to make themselves queenly, even when they had no better materials to work with than skins, furs, bone needles and hairpins scraped out of the reindeer's horns, or plucked from some long-thorned bush. The Eskimo women of today show what female genius can accomplish in that way with the most primitive materials.

When man adorns himself it is with something that heightens the appearance, or at least the suggestion, of courage and fighting ability. It was doubtless so in the Stone Age also. In 1872 the skeleton of a powerful man was found in a cavern near Mentone on the Italian Riviera, lying under a thick coating of limestone which must have required many thousands of years for its deposition, and around his head was a chaplet of stags' teeth. It required courage to kill a stag when there were no weapons but crude flint arrow-heads, or knotty clubs. When Schliemann dug into the ancient graves at Mycenae the skeletons of the men were found surrounded with weapons and those of the women with personal ornaments calculated to adorn beautiful faces and figures.

When nature produced woman she reversed her rule about the relative beauty of the sexes. Among the lower animals, the male is generally the more attractive. Look at the comb-crowned and bright-plumaged rooster and compare him with the plain-coated hens. Among the peafowl it is the male who carries the glorious iridescent fan with its Argus eyes. Almost everywhere among the birds, the males are the beauties, while the females are plain, and relatively unadorned. A similar rule generally prevails among four-footed beasts. But in our own kind it was the woman who was made to be beautiful, and endowed with the talent for decoration, and man was expected to appreciate the flattery of her attention.

True to Nature

Mrs. Wiseman paid too much attention to the passing things of life. At least so her husband thought.

"My dear," said he after dinner, "don't you think you are too prone to waste time over frivolous things? You could take up a serious study—history, for instance. Here, in this book, is an interesting item. Xiesser, the tyrant, put up a hat for the conquered Swiss to salute, and"—

But he had secured his wife's attention right off.

"How was the hat trimmed?" she asked eagerly.

"If at first you don't succeed, try, try, try again," quoted the man who was always boring his friends with mottoes.

"That all right in theory, but I don't believe in it much in practice," commented his companion.

"Why not?"

"Well, I once tried to paper a room myself. I didn't succeed, but I can assure you my experience taught me never to try it again."

Their Married Life

Helen and Warren Go Over the Monthly Accounts, and Warren Grumbles Over Their Size

Copyright, 1916, by International News Service.

"WHERE are you going?" called Warren from the living-room.

"I was going around to the store, dear," said Helen, pausing.

"Can't you telephone?"

"It's too late for the boy to deliver, and we need this for dinner."

"Well, send Mary."

"That Mary is busy getting dinner, dear; she can't take the time."

Warren subsided with a grumbled remark about letting things go. "It's always the way," he said, as he heard the door slam. "Something always needed at the last moment. No system about things; that's the trouble."

The trouble with Warren at the present moment was a perusal of the monthly bills. This month they were larger than usual. Several things had been needed for the house, and Helen had bought two hats and a new suit, which were charged on the Black & Blank bill. Warren continued fingering the papers for some minutes, and then the key in the latch told him that Helen was coming back.

"Come in here and go over these things, will you?" he called.

"I'll be right in, dear, just as soon as I give these things to Mary," and Helen went into the kitchen, to return a few minutes later, her hat and coat off and looking remarkably pretty.

AN OPEN QUESTION

"Do you want to go over the bills?" she said sweetly. "I do hope that you won't think I have been extravagant, dear."

"That remains to be seen; they look pretty large to me."

"But they were things we needed. I haven't bought a thing that wasn't absolutely necessary."

"Here's one amounting to thirty-four ninety-four. What are all these china items?"

"Don't you remember that you told me to complete that set of dishes?"

"Oh, yes; so that's what it is I have been trying to remember. Did we need all these extra pieces?"

"We needed the two vegetable dishes and the meat platter, Warren, but I did add some more pieces. We haven't a gravy dish for that set, and the salad plates were so reasonable!"

"Well, I suppose that one is all right," said Warren, folding it up and putting it in his pocket.

"Black & Blank's bill is next. This is a whopper. I didn't know you paid so much for a suit. Which one is it?"

"Why, dear, my blue suit that you selected yourself. Don't you remember I wanted a cheaper one and you wouldn't have it?"

"No, I don't seem to remember. What's this blouse credited, six dollars?"

"That shirtwaist was too small."

"Didn't you get another one in its place?"

"Yes, but not there."

"WHY TWO HATS?"

"One was the little black straw hat and the other was that leather hat I bought for skating."

"That's extravagant!" he snorted, looking up.

"Well, I needed it, Warren; it looked out of place, somehow, to skate in a sweater and a tailored hat."

Warren grumbled something.

"What's this, one cocktail mixer?"

"That wedding present I bought for your salesman. You told me to buy something."

"Where is it? I haven't seen it."

"It just came home yesterday, and you were out last night.

"Well, get it out and let me look it over. The idea of giving a present like that to a salesman. They'll never use it."

"But this is an extraordinary one," explained Helen. "It's really stunning. Look, dear, it's in the form of a shrapnel; the top is the mixer, and the bottom is filled with little glasses."

Warren was examining the thing carefully.

"By George!" he said, after he had taken it apart, "that's quite an invention."

"Yes, you see, it looks like an ornament, and it really is the latest thing, dear, and they were having a sale when I bought it."

MOLLIFIED

To tell the truth, Helen had bought the thing in a hurry. Louise had told her about them and she had thought it might do for a gift. She had thought very little about whether or not the gift was suitable.

"We'll have to have one of these ourselves," said Warren eagerly. "Fred will never use this in a month of Sundays; I think I'll just keep this and you can get them something else."

"But we really don't need it, Warren, and we need other things more."

"We can find use for it and that poor chap will never know that it is meant to use. You should have known better than to get it."

"But what shall I get, dear?"

"Oh, something in silver or glass. You know more about those things than I do. But do for heaven's sake use your common sense this time. Get something they can find use for. Remember, they are plain, everyday people. They would appreciate something useful, while a thing of this kind would be nothing more than a useless ornament."

"I know, Warren, but we have very little use for a thing of this kind, either; it's an expensive novelty."

"I like it, and I am going to practice it on Fred Stevens. I'll bet he hasn't seen anything of the kind."

"Well, is that all?"

"Oh, just about all, I guess. I suppose you have been as careful as you could. I'll send checks for them. Be a little careful this month. Remember I am having the car overhauled and that will be an expense. We're not millionaires by any means if we do afford a few luxuries."

Another instalment in this series about everyday life will appear shortly on this page.

Concerning Brag as Human Yearning After Romance

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HAVE you ever noticed that it is always the inattractive, uninpressive, drab little women who tell of their exciting adventures along the pathway of life, and the plodding, unmagnetic, unprepossessing men who recount romantic adventures?

Have you ever said to yourself, "I wonder why Mary Robinson always seems to get so much admiration from strangers and so much attention from her friends; she doesn't seem a bit attractive to me"?

The point of it is that the uninteresting, pathetic creatures who are ignored by romance are the very ones who clutch most anxiously at her garments. Dull and homely and unattractive Mary Robinson has no real romance from life, so they live in a romantic little world where they imagine the color and light for which they long.

Don't judge them harshly. Don't laugh at them as a vaunting and idle boasters. They long so for romance, they dream of her so earnestly that almost they persuade themselves that their dreams have come true.

The beautiful belle does not so often belong to the recounter of gay tales of conquest, but more often to the silent and scornful individual who sits by and assumes an air of calm superiority when tales of prowess and triumph are told.

Boasting is not a splendid and fine thing, but rather a weak and ineffectual way of disguising the truth from yourself.

If she has any fine feelings, the popular girl who is invited about and made much of does not discuss it in the presence of less fortunate people. But sometimes the unpopular girl, just because of the fineness and delicacy of feeling that suffers through lack of appreciation and through being more or less put in a corner and ignored, boasts of what she had not.

Most of us boast less of what we have than of what we wish we had. The nouveau riche who flaunts his fortune in your face is either amusing or annoying in his ignorance and bad taste, but not at all to be taken seriously. The man who is earning twenty-five hundred a year, and who tries to make you think his earning capacity twice that sum, is a pathetic faker who fools nobody so much as himself.

Boasting has to fall into one of two classifications: Either it is a pathetic attempt to gloss over unfortunate circumstances, or it is a disgusting vaunting of good fortune.

The sad creature who imagines romances and recounts them, who tells of deeds of daring incompatible with the narrator's very nature, who fancies unfounded importances to employers or an earning capacity that is desired but not attained, and who boasts about all these imagined things, is an object of pity—and who wants to be that?

The successful man or woman who flaunts his victories and triumphs in the face of the world either hurts the unsuccessful or becomes an object of amused scorn to the successful who have the good taste not to sing their own songs of triumph.

Nobody respects a boaster—not even, I think, the boaster himself.

A Record Theft

It was the dinner hour and the workmen had gathered together in a shed for their midday meal.

Presently one of them remembered he had left his pipe in another coat, and went to fetch it. While he was away, another of the men took the absentee's can of well milked tea and put in its place his own can of black, milkless fluid.

The victim of the joke returned presently, and went on with his meal. Soon he raised his tea-can to his lips, then held it away again, and stared at it.

"Well," he exclaimed, "I've heard o' clever thievin' in my time, but to steal the milk out of a man's tea is surely the limit!"

Mother Your Best Confidante

Only One You Should Share Your Secrets With, Says Gilda Leary

Miss Gilda Leary, who is playing in "Heart o' th' Heather" at the Plymouth Theatre.

"If you must unburden your mind, let it be to one who you can feel absolutely certain will share it with no other.

"You can make no mistake when you choose your mother. She is the one to offer you the best advice and encouragement. I owe every particle of my stage success to the untiring and always cheerful assistance of my own mother.

"You see she was unlike most mothers. She did not oppose me when I made up my mind to go on the stage. A great many mothers object to their daughters taking up a stage career, and in many instances the parents are justified in disillusionizing the minds of their daughters. I believe, however, that if a girl is possessed of a level head, ability to endure many heartaches and essential adaptability for acting, she will find the stage an excellent medium by which to earn her livelihood."

Miss Leary is a convent-bred girl. She was born in London and almost immediately after her birth her parents came to America and settled in Victoria, B. C. Her first stage appearance was made in Vancouver. This is her first Boston engagement.

"AVOID confidantes; it is surprising how much real harm arises from the promiscuous habit of telling acquaintances, and even friends, facts concerning yourself or members of your family," says Gilda Leary, leading lady with George MacFarlane, appearing in "Heart o' th' Heather" at the Plymouth Theatre.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

GIVE HIM UP

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl nineteen years of age. About five months ago I made the acquaintance of a gentleman two years my senior. We have kept steady company and he has been very attentive and a strong feeling of attachment has developed. He has often expressed his love for me. Lately his love seems to be vanishing and I feel we are drifting apart. There seems to be no reason for this strange indifference and I am broken-hearted about the whole affair. ANXIOUS RENE.

WHEN a man tires of her, the wise woman accepts the inevitable. The love of nineteen or twenty-one is not the serious thing the love of older years may be. Your friend is probably fickle and prefers a change of sweethearts every few months. Be glad you found him out in time, and don't use up your energies trying to win him back. If he is not the sort to remain loyal, don't worry about him. On the other hand, don't look for trouble and nag at him for his seeming neglect.

DON'T MARRY HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of nineteen, and deeply in love with a man of twenty-four.

One night he called at my home and insulted my father while under the influence of liquor. He apologized next day, saying he did not know what he was doing. What shall I do? E. M. C.

GIVE him up. You do not want to be a drunkard's wife, and a man who permits himself to become so deeply under the influence of liquor that he makes himself obnoxious to his sweetheart's father is not a self-controlled, sane individual such as a girl would do well to marry.

DON'T INTERFERE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A friend of mine once had a very intimate girl friend. They were both very fond of one another, but through a third party these two friend separated two years ago. Since that time they have spoken but little and are not the same friends as they were before the other girl came between.

Now, would you be so kind as to tell me what I can do to have their friendship renewed, as I know it would be the best thing for both. A. Z.

DON'T try to play Providence. You really have no way of knowing what will be the best for your friends. If they are managing to get along nicely without each other, let well enough alone.

Easy

"I never pay old debts."

"How about your new ones?"

This Is Big Motor Show's Last Day

CLOSING HOURS OF EXHIBITION SEE SALES RECORDS BROKEN

By J. C. KERRISON.

Today is the last day of Boston's fourteenth annual Auto Show. This year's show broke all records for sales and also for attendance, though weather conditions this year were the worst in the history of the exhibition.

The salesmen and agents today were on their toes, up to a week ago, trying for more orders before the close of the exhibit. Each of the automobile salesmen and agents sought to have his car come out the winner in sales.

The Automobile Show has set up a record for sales, surpassing both the New York and Chicago shows, which were held earlier in the season. More than 75 per cent. of the cars displayed have already been sold.

Not a car chassis or motor will be moved from its place until after the closing hour, which will be 10:30 tonight. Then the machines will be either taken back to the agents showrooms for a week's special exhibition or sent to the purchaser.

There were approximately 400 cars displayed at the show, and the number more than 300 have been sold, at an average price of $1000, which means that $250,000 worth of cars have already been sold—a record amount.

Aside from the number of automobiles sold the newspapermen who have been on hand all week are talking of the big sales. There was a small army of accessory dealers on hand, who consists of the halls and each one of them did a record business. Just what are the total sales of the accessory dealers has not yet been figured, but will be a large sum without the shadow of a doubt.

A tremendous crowd was on hand at the automobile show Saturday to take advantage of the last chance for twelve months to see the most successful Motor Show ever staged anywhere.

REO MANAGER SAYS PRICES WILL GO UP

"Next July's automobile announcements will be, not of new models, but of new prices—and they'll be higher," says R. C. Rueschaw, sales manager of the Reo Motor Car Company. "There are many reasons why this, if any, automobile concern will announce new models at the usual time next July and there are quite as many reasons why prices will have to be tilted," continued Mr. Rueschaw.

"First, the increased cost of materials because of the shortage of many kinds that are absolutely essential in the making of an automobile. Of course this shortage is due to the European demand, and in this respect does it prices munitions makers are willing to pay to obtain quick deliveries."

J. M. Linscott of the Linscott Motor Company is the bustling distributor for the Reo in this city, and he says the Reo exhibit at the Auto Show is well worth seeing. Automobile enthusiasts have been made at this popular booth.

30 TYPES OF FORD BODIES AVAILABLE

E. K. Hall, manager of the Turner Ring Company, Ford agents with headquarters at No. 1118 Boylston street, is busy these days and at the present time ready to supply thirty types of bodies for Ford cars.

These bodies are all coming from the small, quick-detachable little deck with wings and drop to the beautiful ambulance and undertaker's hearse which are in themselves perfection. The bodies for laundry and bakery delivery cars are especially attractive and are so designed that they are economically sold and erected.

The type of suburban bodies are exceptional in design and are so made that they can provide for almost any emergency and are especially built for outings and sightseeing trips among the mountains and beautiful countryside and in a moment may be turned into a closed body with curtains for protecting the passengers from inclement weather.

RIKER'S NAME ON LOCOMOBILE TRUCK

The Locomobile Company of America have announced that the name of Andrew L. Riker, which is of such significance in motordom, will hereafter appear on their motor trucks. Mr. Riker, who is a genius in the motor truck line, spent many years of his life making the motor engine a model of power and efficiency.

"Riker" on a motor truck means the best economy in motor car engineering. The Locomobile Company stands squarely behind the Riker truck as one of the best built cars in America. The Locomobile Company is a pioneer New England institution, with a reputation of a high quality of material and workmanship, thoroughness and care. One of the most attractive displays at the automobile show is that of this company, both in displays of pleasure and of commercial vehicles.

COMPLETE LINE OF NATIONAL MODELS

The National exhibit at the show is most complete. To the minutest detail Manager A. T. Hart has a display of new National models that he will be proud of. National cars have always been popular, but never more so than now that the twelve-cylinder machine is out. Mr. Hart is working overtime telling people of the fine points of the National High-way Twelve.

Making the seven and twelve, the latter is intermediate in size, measuring by engine displacement. The overall size of the twelve and seven cars is the same, the big six having an extra six inches of wheelbase.

CHANDLER MOTOR WINS HIGH PRAISE

"There are no radical mechanical changes in the Chandler chassis for this year, and there is no slightest hint of experimentation in the motor," says George Crittenden. "There is no reason why there should be any experimentation in it. We have built this motor for three years past in our own factory. The first year or two brought out possibilities for minor refinements, and these refinements were embodied in the motor, but at no time after the first Chandler motor was placed on sale was there any occasion for radical change.

"There was no fault to be corrected, no overheating to be suppressed, which under no circumstances ever was there any trouble with the motor when driven as it should be. Our policy has been to let well enough alone, and we have not changed the motor, except in refinements, since the first car was built. Nor could we, for the fact that the Chandler motor has established a reputation for endurance and power is due entirely to the fact that we have not changed it.

"Our policy in the future will be the same as in the past. We will not change the motor, except in refinements, and we will not change the chassis, except in refinements. We have established a reputation for endurance and power, and we propose to maintain it. We have no fault to find with the motor, and we propose to let well enough alone."

PIERCE-ARROW CAR SCORES BIG HIT

The convertible French coupe, one of the seven models in the Pierce-Arrow space, in Grand Hall, shown by Fred A. Stevens, is attracting the attention it especially merits and is the ideal combination for all the purposes for which automobiles, theatre-going, and similar purposes. It is enclosed for the passenger space, but the driver's seat is open, but with a curtain which can be stretched over the front seat in the event of inclement weather by the driver. One of the notable features in the Pierce-Arrow exhibit is the new town-car model known as the "sport-about," a close relative of the runabout, which combines many of the features which make most appropriate the new title applied.

TWYMAN TO MANAGE GARFORDS HERE

The Boston office of the R. K. Taylor Corporation, eastern distributors of the Garford motor trucks, at No. 72 Brookline avenue, is to have a new manager. C. F. Twyman, jr., is to take charge of the office, succeeding A. S. Holly, who has been manager for some time, is to join the sales force in New York. Mr. Twyman is not a stranger to the motor truck business in Boston, as he was there for some time in that line, and will be remembered by many as a most successful salesman of motor trucks. He has made a fine record in the sales force in New York and his promotion is due entirely to his ability as a live young man, full of enthusiasm and enterprise.

MITCHELL PRAISES STUTZ 4-CYLINDER

"One of the many things overheard at the show by those who have visited the Stutz exhibit at Mechanics Building," said a salesman of the Becker-Gosin Automobile Company, "was the remark made by interest the most is the intelligent discussion of motors by visitors. It was a pleasure to listen to both pro and con and listen closely, when you will have two things proven to you that are unmistakable. The first is the very evident fact that the motor-buying public is getting more and more educated while the second, and to me the most interesting, is the disclosure that after all the four-cylinder motor, six-cylinder and twelves, the time-tried four is generally the auto field on its own as buyers become better posted."

KING "EIGHT" IS POPULAR AT SHOW

The King "Eight" at the show is attracting more than ordinary attention. Since the introduction of the "King's Eight" factories of that company have been taxed to capacity to meet the orders for the popular machine. The car is well represented at the Auto Exhibition, too. Prominent among the workers at the King booth are H. F. H. Finlay, general sales manager; Artemas Ward, jr., president; W. K. Hadley, general manager, and Mr. Burbeil, general manager and Mr. Holson, technical expert. All are handling the crowds that are constantly visiting the King booth as to the merits of the King "Eight."

YEARS OF TESTS IN PATHFINDER CAR

"The Pathfinder Company made constructive experiments of the multiple-cylinder motor for four years before becoming entirely satisfied that the six was the motor that would approximate perfection than any other," said C. M. Strichy, local Pathfinder distributor. "We discovered that when a motor is built into a 'V' the problem of lubrication presented itself, and that unless we adopted the splash system of lubricant distribution is depended upon."

COLE LECTURER IS FORMER BOSTON BOY

One of the features of the Auto Show is the daily lecture given by Joseph Burns, who is demonstrating the Cole chassis. Mr. Burns is one of the best known chassis lecturers in the country, and has been on the travelling ground from show to show, during the summer months he visits dealers' conventions, state fairs, etc., but he is always lecturing somewhere, carrying the "Cole" tidings of "Cole." Mr. Burns was formerly employed in this city at the local Cole branch, and for several years was also a talker on the chassis, however, that factory executives decided that he was of more value to the company as a lecturer.

FOSTORIA LIGHT CAR A SENSATION

Size and quality are the keynotes of the exhibition of the products of the Fostoria Light Car Company, on exhibition at the Auto Show. The features in the display include a touring car, a roadster, a coupe and other lines. The Fostoria is a car of many unusual features, chief among which are its easy riding qualities, its accessibility and its freedom from friction. The chassis is of standard quality with extra long cantilever springs used on all the models. With twenty-six horsepower and a wheel base of 108 inches, the Fostoria has five equals in its class.

NEW MACK TRUCK PROVES FEATURE

The Mack truck is creating [illegible] share of attention owing to its many new and radical features of truck design. The machine has the appearance of a powerful, strong vehicle and yet its weight is light as compared to its strength and power. Among the many new features are a unique radiator, which has driven through the tubular radiator made without the use of solder at any of the joints. The patented hood that is raised to set at all the working parts of the motor, every angle steering gear and the Mack-Bulldog tandem drive, by which the rear wheels are driven by four gears, dividing the power equally between the rear wheels, thereby producing greater traction and lessening the wear and tear on the tires. The Mack-Bulldog tandem drive is used into the Mack exhibit at Mechanics Building, and is the most progressive practice and be of great interest to concerns having heavy loads to haul.

Motor Show Notes

One of the attractions of the show is the Owen Magnetic, which is being displayed by H. F. Chase, Inc., in both the touring and limousine cars and also in the chassis. The Owen Magnetic is a newcomer in the automobile world, but has already attracted attention at the show to the extent that a number of orders have been placed for them, according to Mr. Chase.

* * *

S. M. Williams, sales manager of the Packard Motor Car Co., arrived in town, and was greatly impressed by the display of motor vehicles. He considers the Auto Show a most successful affair and says he feels that has ever been held anywhere in the country, and while, of course, he is identified with the exhibition, regretting the weather conditions, he feels that the other branches are such as will permit of a more emphatic illustration of the capabilities of motor trucks.

President Artemas Ward, jr., of the Ward Motor Vehicle Co., of this city, Boston, declares that this show has broken all records in attendance and sales. Dealers from all over New England are in large a number of people have turned out, despite the bad weather, where they have had to wade through slush and snow to attend the show," he said of said building. Telephone, Richmond 2000.

Ironsmen among the motor truck visitors to the show were Fred W. Taylor, president of the R. K. Taylor Corporation, Eastern distributors of Garford motor trucks, and Fred Swan, jr., the new manager of the Boston office of that concern, and A. C. Goodrich, of the Akron rubber firm of the corporation from New York.

George W. Houk of the Houk Wire Wheel reached the show yesterday and expressed his delight at the great success that has attended the display by the Houk Wire Wheel managers, Bliss & Smith Co. He is highly pleased delighted to learn that of the cars exhibited on the floors of Mechanics Building 90 per cent. are equipped with the Houk Wire Wheel, which is rapidly becoming the standard equipment.

Harry S. Quick, secretary to the president, and H. G. Palmer, assistant manager of the autocar department of the Autocar Sales & Service Co., are handling the show, and are the guests of F. H. Bliss, the local agent for the Goodrich product.

Stocks Weaken During Morning, After Opening Higher. Butte & Superior and Mexican Petroleum Close Lower. Invasion Does Not Alarm Traders

Intervention Should Aid Stocks

By BOERSIANER.

What real and courageous intervention in Mexico would mean to the stock market was signally shown during yesterday's session. On the report that Villa had murderously raided an American village, the stocks of corporations doing business in or near Mexico slumped.

Mexican Petroleum, in instance lost two points in the initial transactions. Directly Washington announced a punitive expedition would start in pursuit of the brigands, Mexican Petroleum rushed from just to 90½, Southern Pacific gained over a point, while the general column of the entire market was stiffened.

United Shoe Machinery Corporation

The Directors of this Corporation have declared quarterly dividends of 1¾% ($7.50 per share) on the Preferred capital stock, and a dividend of 2½ (10c per share) on the Common capital stock, payable April 4th, 1916, to stockholders of record at the close of business March 14, 1916.

J. A. COOLIDGE, Treasurer.

This was a polished and most practical response to the numerous counsels of intervention in certain quarters that to restore to civilization would be virtual war with the United States and harm to securities which a war implies.

There have been one billion good dollars' worth invested in Mexico. It is difficult to conceive how a civil war—again—which would also be an unconquering blessing to Mexico could be waged without a penalty expended upon the brigands. Mexican Petroleum rushed from just to 90½, Southern Pacific gained over a point, while the general column of the entire market was stiffened.

Mexican Petroleum rushed from just to 90½, Southern Pacific gained over a point, while the general column of the entire market was stiffened.

The abrupt strength imparted to the market by what came out of Washington was retained to the end. That kind of information did for stocks what a brilliant campaign would do for the politics of a party. Nothing short of steel corporation could not go for a market that has been shocked by the most exploit of the mighty bandit.

No doubt in normal circumstances the Steel report just issued, showing 3,566,965 tons unfilled orders of 4,568,965 tons, an increase in a month of 916,789 tons, transcends any figure in the records of the corporation.

The President's Action Rejoices All Americans

The President has taken hold of the Mexican problem with the strong hand.

General Funston has been ordered to get Villa. The country can rest quite easy over the outcome. Funston will get Villa.

It is the AMERICAN'S most sincere pleasure to congratulate the President upon his firm and proper attitude.

We had feared that the country was to be treated to another dose of watchful waiting, and we knew that the country was sick of that sort of thing. But the President has dispelled that fear. He has acted exactly as we hoped he would act and feared that he would not.

Among all the newspapers in this country none will stand by Mr. Wilson more loyally and more gladly than will the AMERICAN, now that he has decided to uphold the honor of the nation and to avenge the insults and outrages inflicted upon Americans by these Mexican bandits.

For the masses of the people in Mexico we have only the utmost sympathy. The poor creatures have themselves been the victims of the same rapacious and unscrupulous villains who have outraged and murdered our citizens. We are certain that they will in their hearts welcome the sight of American troops, coming not to conquer and enslave them, but to release them from the terror in which they have lived for months and years.

Mr. Wilson has finally got on the right track. We feel pretty certain that he will not turn back.

As for our soldiers, we do not doubt for one moment but they will give the same good account of themselves which American soldiers have always given.

All they want is to be brought face to face with these murderers. Then they will do the rest.

Again we congratulate and thank the President.

It certainly will rejoice the whole country to know that at last the government has decided to deal with these Mexican bandits with the iron hand.

Now they will learn that there is such a thing as pressing the forbearance of a great and powerful people beyond the limits of endurance.

When our soldiers are through with these villains we think it will be some time before another lot of brigands will murder Americans.

Fathers of Massachusetts: AWAKE!

You Can Cut the Death Rate of Babies in Half; You Can End the Need of Paying Heavy Taxes for the Support of the Insane and Feeble-Minded—Use Your Vote Intelligently and Stop the Use of Intoxicating Liquor and Habit-Forming Drugs.

THIS is the week which the thoughtful and public-spirited citizens have devoted to an effort to arouse the interest of fathers in scientific, systematic attention to the development of their children.

The influence of the mother upon a child will always be greater than the influence of the father, but there IS a field for the exercise of the father's influence which the mother cannot occupy, and it is a very important field. The father has, under our foolish and unjust system of voting, the EXCLUSIVE control of legislation. Legislation cannot perform miracles, but, by it, we are able to invoke the collective power of the community in the achievement of any given good.

The great lesson of our modern civilization is the power of collective action, that is, action through the government, to benefit the individual. In the stupid, blind old days, when we were just emerging from the darkness of medievalism, the economists had a notion that the more you left to the individual and the less you depended upon the government to do, the better was the condition of the people.

That theory grew out of the fact that governments in those days were tyrannical and corrupt, that they were all monarchies and most of the kings who ruled cared more for the condition of their horses and dogs than they did for the condition of their people.

But times have changed and governments have changed with them. Today in nearly all the civilized countries governments are good, and in the long run are devoted to the improvement of the condition of the people. We need no longer distrust our government, because we control it, even if we do not exercise our control as often as we ought to exercise it.

Germany and Australia and New Zealand have taught the great modern lesson that individualism is a poor, rusty, inefficient, antiquated instrument compared with collective action through the government by legislation in improving the condition of the people. The wonderful progress of Germany in the last forty years, within the narrow confines of her none too fertile territory, has been almost entirely due to the development of the efficiency of collective action through legislation. So, too, have Australia and New Zealand developed.

All three of these countries have for a number of years owned and operated their railroads, their telegraph companies and most of their other public service corporations. Having taken over these corporations they thus dried up the great source of corruption in politics everywhere, purified their governments and made their representatives more faithful to their public trusts. Thus the struggle which is irrepressible between the people and the corporations has ceased in those progressive countries and the representatives of the people have had more time and more disposition to devote their attention to the thousand means of developing "the greatest good for the greatest number."

Consequently we find that in New Zealand the death rate of babies is only 51 in a thousand, while in Massachusetts, civilized Massachusetts, it is 104 to the thousand! Massachusetts, old and established compared with New Zealand, on the high road of civilization while New Zealand is remote from all civilized environment; Massachusetts, boasting of her education and progress, allows twice as many babies born in this State to die as do the people of New Zealand.

The difference in the death rate is wholly a matter of difference in law; wholly a matter of difference in intelligent legislation, IN THE INTELLIGENT USE BY THE FATHERS OF THEIR POWER TO VOTE.

It requires no deep student of social conditions to discover the causes of our failure and New Zealand's success in the protection of children. One out of many causes is the difference in the consumption of alcohol in New Zealand and in the United States. Eight gallons per inhabitant are consumed a year in New Zealand, while almost twenty gallons per inhabitant are consumed in the United States.

All this is stupid neglect by the fathers. They thus not only jeopardize the lives of their children, but they greatly add to the cost of living by this unintelligent, negligent use of the power to vote. One-quarter of the taxes which the people of Massachusetts pay goes to the care of the insane and feeble-minded; and at least one-half of all this expense could be avoided if, by intelligent legislation, we used the ounce of prevention which is worth a pound of cure.

Half the insanity and feeble-mindedness is caused by the intemperate use of intoxicating liquors and other habit-forming drugs, against which the Boston AMERICAN is determined to wage a relentless campaign. These are preventable causes of disease and death. They are matters with which the fathers of Massachusetts can effectively deal.

LET THE FATHERS OF MASSACHUSETTS AWAKE!

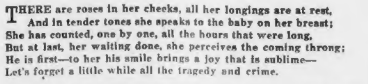
The Other Side of Life

LET'S forget a little while the tragedy and crime,
All the passions that are vile, all the filthiness and slime;
Yonder is a graceful tree, and beyond a cottage where
Sweet contentment still may be—evil has not entered there;
One whose laughter still is sweet and who still has youth and grace
Glances often down the street—love is gleaming on her face.

OFTEN through the pleasant day, with her baby in her arms,
She has hummed a little lay—life for her still has its charms;
On a chair her sewing lies—pretty little things in white;
There is gladness in her eyes, and her future still is bright;
She can hear the distant roar of a swiftly moving train,
As she listens at the door and looks down the street again.

THERE are roses in her cheeks, all her longings are at rest,
And in tender tones she speaks to the baby on her breast;
She has counted, one by one, all the hours that were long,
But at last, her waiting done, she perceives the coming throng;
He is first—to her his smile brings a joy that is sublime—
Let's forget a little while all the tragedy and crime.



That Would Have Been Pathetic

"Do you think the play is one that I should take my daughter to see?" she asked.

"Certainly not!" he replied. "Dear me, it is as bad as that? I'm so glad I found out in time. This, I believe is the last week. If you hadn't mentioned it I might have missed it."

Too Late

As soon as she has succeeded in destroying his affection she discovers that she cared for him, after all.

No Use

Have you ever met a man who helped to make business better by complaining that it was bad?

Didn't Want to Spoil a Good Thing

"Darling," he said, "I fell in love with you the first time I ever saw you."

"I know you did," she replied.

"Then why have you kept me in suspense all these months?"

"I wanted to enjoy myself with you for a while before we ended our pleasure by getting married."

No Elevator

Instead of starting in sensibly to climb the ladder of success most young men waste their time in looking for the elevator.

Good Hearing

Nobody ever becomes too deaf to hear when money talks.

Beginning with War and Winding Up with Ellen

Being a Few Words, at the Week-End, on Some of the Features of New England's Greatest Sunday Newspaper. The Newest War Is in Mexico. "Ellen" Is in a Gouverneur Morris Love Story. Do You Think Ellen Was Right?

They have started after Mr. Frank Villa and his assistant murderers with 5,000 men and we shall have in our favorite Sunday newspaper to read that Francisco has been captured and is on his way to the United States in irons.

That is to say, UNLESS:

Unless Villa is taken, dead or alive, before today's newspapers have been out upon the streets long enough to get cold.

Unless Villa surrenders.

Unless the pursuit is still in progress.

Unless the Carranza government, or the Mexican people, shall make formal protest to Washington against the intrusion of American policemen to take and bring back a red-handed murderer.

In the latter case, Washington assures us this morning, General Funston's punitive expedition will assume more formidable aspects. Instead of 5,000 men, or 10,000 men, we shall then be sending 250,000 American soldiers across the Rio Grande, and the Atlantic and Pacific fleets to Vera Cruz and Tampico, and that War with Mexico, which has been coming three long years and more, will be fairly under way.

We live at a time when the man who would keep in touch with the affairs of his world must read the newspapers EVERY day. Yesterday, Verdun. Today, Mexico. Tomorrow, ——?

In SUCH a news crisis, the Sunday AMERICAN rejoices more than ever before in the complete wire service of the International News, one of the greatest news-gathering organizations in the history of the world. Under unfavorable circumstances the International News has advised us of the progress of the War in Europe as quickly and as completely as if the battlefields were just around the corner.

Mexico is next door to us and today the International News Service is represented at news centres in Mexico by some of the best reporters and special writers in the business of newsgathering.

The situation as to Mexico and Villa will be adequately covered by the Sunday AMERICAN all the way from the A B C of it down to the W X Y Z & of it.

Young mothers will want the Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow because of a certain page given over to some of the most important lessons, letters and lectures of Baby Week.

This page will PLEASE young mothers, and, we hope, HELP them.

ALL mothers will want the Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow because of a certain other page given over to the somewhat revolutionary thoughts and opinions of one Madame Valentine de St. Point, the "brilliant Parisian poetess," who is further described as the "grandniece of the great Lamartine."

The question Madame de St. Point selects to answer is THIS: "Are Children's Parents Their Worst Enemies?"

Poor parents!

First they are being told what to DO for the baby, and next somebody sets up that the "education and control of their children should be taken away from them," anyway.

Tush, tush, what a world!

Let us be tolerant of the distinguished Frenchwoman, however, and read her views. She begins:

> The child has in nearly all ages been regarded as a thing belonging exclusively to its family, to those who have brought it into the world. It seems to parents that the normal and natural act of giving life to a being secures to them the exclusive property of that being, to which they accord no serious rights and from which they expect every duty.
> This is a traditional human error which has brought untold misery and degradation upon the human race, and which I feel it to be my most solemn duty to combat with all my strength.

"Well, the very idea!"

We almost can hear the Mothers of New England saying that already, while the Daddies say something stronger. The Madame Valentine de St. Point page is really interesting, however, and well worth reading. We do wish the great Lamartine were here to reply to it!

Business men of the great State of Maine have asked for the referendum of a question of great importance. There will be a story about THAT in the Sunday AMERICAN.

We used to be told, you remember, that business men opposed the Initiative and Referendum because they would lead to socialism and anarchy, and dear knows what not. We used to be told, you remember, that in any State blessed by the Initiative and Referendum that plan of popular government would be "worked to death."

In Maine we observe, once more, that people are told a great many things that are not so.

The present Maine question has to do with the new 54-hour law. The merchants of the State have asked to have it referred to the people. We infer that they will conduct a "campaign of education." The Sunday AMERICAN story is not only interesting but important.

During the progress of the War in Europe, we have read a great deal ABOUT the German-Americans and very little FROM the German-Americans. Prof. John A. Walz, professor of German language and literature at Harvard University, writes in the Sunday AMERICAN on "What a German Victory Would Mean to the Whole World."

Izrael Zangwill continues a poem, "Place of Peace." The notable fiction of the week includes "The Handbook of Hymen," by O. Henry, "The Traitor's Mother," by Maxim Gorky, and "The Captain's Son," by Maurice Leblanc.

In conclusion, we would ask you this. Do YOU Think Ellen Was Right?

Leave that to Gouverneur Morris. Read HIS answer in New England's greatest Sunday newspaper.
